This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFATORY NOTE.

IN bringing forward the present Volume the ACTING EDITOR of the MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA feels that he cannot forget to notice the devout attention which the late Dr. HOWARD paid to the authenticity of documents and the dates committed to his judgment and approval, and how, in any case submitted to him, his decision was always on the right side, and his opinion at all times cheerfully given without any ulterior gain to himself.

The EDITORS have to acknowledge with pleasure the various contributions made by Mr. A. F. G. LEVESON GOWER, F.S.A., of H.B.M. Legation, The Hague, as it is their duty to again thank him for the transcriptions of the Monuments in the Church of St. Giles-in-the-Fields. To our able contributor Mr. MAXWELL ADAMS, B.A., we were indebted for the History of the Family of Adams, which included an interesting account of the Family of Viscount Iveagh. To Mr. CECIL T. DAVIS they are much indebted for his ample account of the Inhabitants of Wandsworth. The genealogical history of the Family of Savage of Warwickshire is also interesting, the pedigree shewing the maternal relatives of Walter Savage Landor. To Mr. EVERARD GREEN, F.S.A., Rouge Dragon, they owe their best thanks for the pedigree he contributed, and also to Mr. GEORGE GRAZEBROOK, F.S.A., for his "Physiological Curiosity," which has aroused a good deal of attention in the medical world.

By the advice of Subscribers we shall issue the forthcoming Volume as Volume I., Fourth Series; it will enable many new Subscribers to join at the beginning of a Series, and will contain a transcription of the Monumental Inscriptions in the British Cemeteries of the Ionian Islands by Mr. LEVESON GOWER, which he had done previous to their demolition by the municipal authorities. We have also had copied all the monuments in St. Anne's Church, Soho, for publication.

The EDITORS trust to be favoured with contributions appertaining to family history, grants of arms, etc.; and any other matter of a genealogical nature will be always cheerfully acknowledged.

A GENEALOGICAL HISTORY

OF THE

Family of Adams of Cavan, etc.*

INTRODUCTION.

THE following History has been very carefully compiled from the most authentic sources, viz., information from members of the family, monumental inscriptions, parochial and family registers, wills, deeds, family manuscripts, published works in the libraries of Trinity College, Dublin, the Royal Irish Academy, the Royal Dublin Society, etc.

The original surname of the family was "Adam,"† and they appear to have been the constant and steady friends of the Red Douglases, Earls of Angus, ever ready to unite their followers either to repel an inroad of the English or in turn to become the invaders; and though they have never obtained a more permanent title than knighthood, they have reached to the highest position in the different professions, and have formed matrimonial alliances with the noble houses of Douglas, Leslie, O'Neill, Magennis, Cosby, etc., ever maintaining their position in that class of society so happily described by Sir Bernard Burke, Ulster King-of-Arms, "as holding the next place to the Nobility, the untitled Country Gentlemen, a class, though be it remembered, not one degree below the other in antiquity of descent, personal accomplishments, and national usefulness; nay, the Chiefs of the Houses from which the Nobility spring are generally to be found in this division of the Aristocracy, and for the simple reason that the eldest son and heir being already provided for, the field of adventure belongs almost exclusively to the junior members of the family, who, thus forced upon the arena, achieve by their prowess or their talents—the sword or the pen—fame, wealth, and eminence." (Preface to Burke's "Landed Gentry," 1846.)

The following description of Northlands, the seat of the senior branch of the family, is from the pen of the same talented author:—"Northlands, in the county of Cavan, the seat of the Very Rev. Samuel Adams. This mansion was built in the year 1822 by the present proprietor, the estate itself having been in the family for the last 150 years. The house, which is of moderate size, is in the plain English style of building. In front of the hall door is a porch of cut-stone such as may still be seen in many parts of this country. Above forty acres of underwood was planted here in 1817." (Burke's "Visitation of Seats and Arms," vol. ii., p. 93.) Several acres of plantation, with Cornalaragh Lough, have since been added to the demesne, which is now the residence of Samuel Allen Adams.

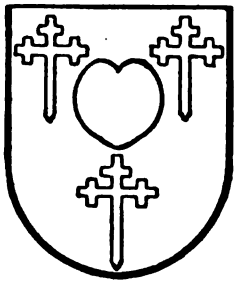
* Communicated by MAXWELL ADAMS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. From a MS. by the late Rev. B. W. ADAMS, D.D.

† It would seem that inattention to spelling first caused the alteration of the name from Adam to Adams, for we find that Jane Adams née Allen (see p. 8), wife of James Adams of Monaghan, is called Adams in the will of her mother, Margaret Allen of Kilmore, dated 5 December 1694, and Adam in that of her brother, Richard Allen of Kilmore, co. Monaghan, dated 14 October 1724, in which her son also is called Allen Adam. Both wills are in the Probate Office, King's Inns, Dublin. See also the extracts given in the APPENDIX, where Colonel Adams is also called Mo Adam.

THE ARMS OF THE FAMILY OF ADAMS.



The Arms borne by the family of Adams are: Gules, a heart between three crosses-crosslet fitchée or; and for Crest: On a mount vert a cross-crosslet fitchée or, charged with a bleeding heart, as registered in the Office of Arms in Dublin.

Richard Adams of Wainsford, Hants, however, used as a crest a wyvern gules, and his descendants still use the same. It is not known how this crest came to be assumed by this branch of the family, but there is a tradition that Richard Adams adopted his mother's crest, she being a Leslie.

Another branch of the family used as crest a cross-crosslet fitchée gules, surmounted by a sword in saltire proper, hilted and pommelled or, which is the crest of the family of Adam of Blair Adam, from whom the Adamses are descended.

The descendants of Richard Adams of Wainsford also quarter the arms of Peers, viz., Azure, on a fesse argent between three pelicans or, vulning themselves proper, as many Ogresses—the said Richard having married Louisa, daughter and coheir of Newsham Peers of Alveston in Warwickshire, who died 1803.

THE FAMILY HISTORY.

The first authentic account of the family is recorded in Scotland, in the reign of Alexander II. (1214—1249), when

SIR DUNCAN ADAM, Knt., affixed his signature, as a witness, to a donation to the church of Wemyss (Burke's "Visitation of Seats and Arms," vol. ii., p. 31) by a progenitor of the Earl of Wemyss. His successor,

ALEXANDER ADAM, lived in the reign of Alexander III. (1249—1286) (Burke's "Visitation of Seats and Arms," vol. ii., p. 31), and is traditionally reported to have married into the illustrious house of Douglas. His son,

DUNCAN ADAM, lived during the eventful reign of Robert Bruce (1306—1329) (Burke's "Visitation of Seats and Arms," vol. ii., p. 31); he married and left four sons, Robert, John, Reginald, and Duncan (Burke's "Landed Gentry," 1846, vol. i., p. 4), from whom all the Adams, Adamses, Adamsons, and Addies in Scotland are descended. The third son was very likely the Right Rev. Reginald Adam, Bishop of Brechin, Scotland, one of the most influential men of his time, and was frequently employed by the Estates of the Nation in foreign negotiations during the troubled reign of David Bruce (1329—1371), in all of which he acquitted himself ably and honourably (Burke's "Visitation of Seats and Arms," vol. ii., p. 31). The youngest son,

DUNCAN ADAM, with several other brave Scottish gentlemen, accompanied James, Lord Douglas, in the expedition which he undertook in order to convey, in a golden casket, the embalmed heart of King Robert Bruce to the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem (Burke's "Visitation of Seats and Arms," vol. ii., p. 31). On arriving there, Douglas solemnly buried it before the High Altar, and on his voyage home, being forced by a storm to land at Valencia in Spain, he found Alphonsus, King of Arragon, preparing to march against the Saracens or Moors. Lord Douglas joined his forces and was slain in an ambush, 20 August 1330, on the bloody field of Theba in Andalusia (Hume's "Hist. of the Houses of Douglas and Angus"). Another version of this tragic event is given by Thomas Smibert in his "Hist. of the Clans of Scotland," that it was on the journey out Douglas was obliged to land at Valencia, and that when he came up with the Saracens he tossed the casket containing the heart of his royal master into the thickest of the enemy, bidding it "Go first as it was wont, and Douglas would follow or die." Douglas was slain, but his faithful followers, recovering possession of the casket and heart, conveyed them to Jerusalem and there buried them (Smibert's "Hist. of the Clans of Scotland," p. 323). It is believed that the heart and crosses-crosslet in the armorial bearings of the family are derived from the part this Duncan Adam took in this expedition (Burke's "Visitation of Seats and Arms," vol. ii., p. 31). His son,

REGINALD ADAM, in 1385, took part in an invasion of Northumberland, conducted by Sir James Douglas (eleventh Baron and second Earl of Douglas) and John de Vienne, Earl of Valentinois and Admiral of France (Burke's "Visitation of Seats and Arms," vol. ii., p. 31); "they took the castles of Wark, Foord, and Cornwall, and spoiled and burned the country between Berwick and Newcastle." Under the walls of the latter Douglas defeated, in personal encounter, Sir Henry Percy, better known as Harry Hotspur, and carried off in triumph his pennon. "But when the Scottish Chiefs intended to march farther, the continual rain that fell in great abundance, it being autumn, did so spoil the roads, raise the waters and wet the soldiers in their armour, that they were forced to return home" (Hume's "Hist. of the Houses of Douglas and Angus"). It was to redeem his pennon thus taken that Percy, invading Scotland in 1388, was defeated and taken prisoner at the Battle of Otterbourne, 15 August 1388, where Douglas, though victorious, was slain (Smibert's "Hist. of the Clans of Scotland"). This is the battle celebrated in the old Border ballad of "Chevy Chase." Reginald Adam's lineal descendant,

SIR JOHN ADAM, Knt., accompanied James IV. in his invasion of England August 1513, and fell at the Battle of Flodden Field 9 September 1513 (Burke's "Visitation of Seats and Arms," vol. ii., p. 31),

> "In that undaunted ring
> That fought unbroken round their King"

while vainly striving to shield their Sovereign from a similar fate. The conclusion of this battle is graphically described by Sir Walter Scott in "Marmion":—

> "When skilful Surrey's sage commands,
> Led back from strife his shattered bands;
> Then did their loss his foemen know;
> Their king, their lords, their mightiest low,
> To tell red Flodden's dismal tale,
> And raise the universal wail.
> Tradition, legend, tune and song,
> Shall many an age that wail prolong;
> Still from the sire the son shall hear
> Of the stern strife and carnage drear
> Of Flodden's fatal field,
> When shivered was fair Scotland's spear,
> And broken was her shield."
> "Marmion," canto vi.

Sir John Adam's son,

CHARLES ADAM, proprietor in 1549 of the estate of Fanno, co. Forfar, married Margaret Ferguson, and had issue two sons, Charles, his heir, and David, progenitor of the Adams of Kingsbarn, co. Fife, and two daughters (Burke's "Landed Gentry," 1846, vol. i., p. 4). The elder son,

CHARLES ADAM of Fanno, married Isabel Bisset, a descendant of the ancient family of Lissendrum (Burke's "Landed Gentry," 1846, vol. i., p. 4), and had issue several sons and daughters.* One of the former left a son,

JAMES ADAMS, a Colonel in the Army, who, affixing the letter "s" to his patronymic† and settling in the North of Ireland, probably in the county Down, in the early part of the seventeenth century, married the Hon. Catherine Magennis, dau. of Arthur Magennis, first Viscount Iveagh, by his wife Lady Sarah O'Neill, dau. of Hugh, Earl of Tyrone (Burke's "Landed Gentry," 1862). In 1641 Sir Phelim Roe O'Neill, Commander-in-Chief of the Insurgent Army, and cousin of Mrs. Adams, was breakfasting at Colonel Adams', and overhearing one of his sentries ask Mrs. Adams, who was leading by the hand down stairs her little son James, "Whose little heretic brat that was?" rushed out of the room, and, plunging his sword through the soldier's body, exclaimed, "Let him serve as a warning to all how they speak disrespectfully of the blood of the O'Neill!" Colonel Adams was succeeded by his son,

JAMES ADAMS, Captain in the Army of William III., who distinguished himself at the Battle of the Boyne 1 July 1690; married about 1672, and dying left two sons, James his heir, and another, father of Samuel Adams of Monaghan, who was executor in 1755 to his cousin Allen Adams of Corranearry House, co. Cavan (see below), and progenitor of the (now extinct) family of Adams of Monaghan. The elder son,

JAMES ADAMS of Monaghan, afterwards of Corranearry House, co. Cavan, born 1673, married 1694 Jane, daughter of William and Margaret Allen of Kilmore, co. Monaghan, and died 19 November 1744, aged 71. Mrs. Adams died 17 March 1752, aged 75, and both were interred in Knockbride churchyard, co. Cavan,‡ where their tomb still remains outside the south wall of the old church. They were succeeded by their only son,

ALLEN ADAMS of Corranearry House, co. Cavan, born 1708; married about 1735 Martha (born 1702), daughter of William Higenbotham, Esq. (who died 1760), and granddaughter of Captain Thomas Higenbotham (who died 1737) by his wife Miss Williams, Maid of Honour to Mary II., and daughter of General Scurlog Williams of Clongill Castle, co. Meath.§ He died 15 December 1755, aged 47, and was interred beside his parents. His will, signed 13 May 1755, was proved

* From Robert, the second but eldest surviving son, is descended the family of Adam of Blair Adam, Kinross-shire, Scotland.

† See footnote on p. 5. For some of Colonel Adams' exploits see APPENDIX.

‡ Knockbride Churchyard, enclosing both the present and the old churches, is situated on the road from Shercock to Stradone, about four miles from the former village. Corranearry Lough bounds two sides of the churchyard, and on a hill, on the opposite side of the Lough, stand the remains of Corranearry House, the original residence of the Adamses in Cavan. A short distance from it is Castletown House. In the old church, at the south-west corner, is a spacious vault belonging to the family of Richard Adams of Shercock House (see p. 9); but he himself lies with his ancestors in the cemetery adjoining. The old church is the place of burial of the Rev. Benjamin Adams and his descendants.

§ By the marriage of Allen Adams with Miss Higenbotham, the Adams family enjoy the privilege of being hereditary freemen of the Borough of Drogheda, which had been granted to General Scurlog Williams and his descendants for ever, for the prompt and efficient aid afforded by him to the inhabitants of the town in 1690.

in Dublin 24 January 1756 (Probate Court, Dublin). Mrs. Adams continued to reside at Corranearry House with her second son James, and dying there 1807, aged 105, was interred in Knockbride, having had issue five sons and two daughters, namely: 1, RICHARD (see below); 2, JAMES; 3, WILLIAM; 4, SAMUEL; 5, BENJAMIN; 6, MARGARET; 7, JANE.

THE DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD ADAMS, ELDEST SON OF ALLEN ADAMS AND MARTHA HIGENBOTHAM.

I. RICHARD ADAMS, J.P., of Shercock House,* co. Cavan, born 1736; was High Sheriff of Cavan in 1783 and of Monaghan in 1785 (Walker's "Hibernian Magazine"); married 13 April 1761 (Bailieborough Par. Reg.) Amelia, daughter of Thomas Cosby, Esq., of Beeks Court, co. Cavan, nephew of the Right Hon. Dudley Cosby, Lord Sydney, of Stradbally Hall, Queen's County; died 1789, aged 53. His will, signed 11 July 1789, with a codicil, dated 22 September 1789, was proved in Dublin 4 February 1790 (Probate Court, Dublin). He and his wife (who survived him some years) were interred in Knockbride, having had issue five sons and four daughters, viz.:—

Cavan, born 1763; entered the Army as Ensign in the 96th Regiment 13 April 1780; Lieut. 28 May 1782, and was placed on half-pay when the Corps was disbanded, 31 May 1783 (Letter from the Horse Guards). He afterwards became Major and Paymaster of the Cavan Regiment; married 10 May 1789 (St. Peter's, Dublin, Par. Reg.) Catherine, daughter of Henry Leslie, Esq., of Dublin; was High Sheriff of Cavan in 1790 (Walker's "Hibernian Magazine"), and died at Shercock House 1809. His wife died in Dublin August 1814, and both were interred in Knockbride, leaving issue two sons and two daughters, namely:—

   1. RICHARD STUART ADAMS of Ackworth, near Pontefract, co. York, born 2 May 1790; entered the Army as Ensign in the 24th Foot 27 November 1806 (Letter from the Horse Guards); Lieut. 11 May 1809; was present at the Battle of Talavera in Spain 27 July 1809; Captain in the 3rd Battalion of the 14th Foot 13 January 1814, which Battalion was disbanded March 1816 ("Army List") and its officers placed on half-pay. He married 1827 Jane Guest, daughter of Richard Hazelwood, Esq., of Bridgewater, co. Somerset, and died s.p. August 1837, aged 47, and was interred 11 August 1837 in Ackworth Churchyard beside his wife, who had died July 1837, aged 34, and was buried 8 July 1837 (Ackworth Par. Reg.).

* Shercock House was situated near the present village of that name. It was the residence of the Piers family, to whom Queen Elizabeth granted the manor of Pierscourt. Some of the garden wall still remains on the lake shore, to the rear of the market house, next which at the end of the town was the entrance-gate and lodge, the avenue corresponding in part to the modern road from Shercock to Canning's town. The house occupied the site of the present Roman Catholic Chapel. In the townland of Leix the boundaries of the Deer Park can still be traced, but its extensive woods, which within the memory of the past generation extended far around, have now their existence only in tradition. The mansion was allowed to go to ruin early in the nineteenth century.

DARTREY

Bookplate of "Dartrey."

This bookplate, the date of which is between 1770 and 1785, represents the arms of Thomas Dawson, who was created, 28 May 1770, BARON DARTREY OF DAWSON'S GROVE, co. Monaghan, in the peerage of Ireland. He was subsequently, 19 June 1785, created VISCOUNT CREMORNE in that peerage, and finally, with in that case a special remainder, 11 Nov. 1791, BARON CREMORNE OF CASTLE DAWSON, co. Monaghan, also in that peerage. He was born 25 Feb. and baptized 2 March 1725; was M.P. for co. Monaghan 1749—68, being raised to the peerage in 1770, as above stated. His second wife, whom he married 8 May 1770, and whose arms (being those of the family of Freme of Lippiat, co. Gloucester) are here given in an escutcheon of pretence, was Philadelphia Hannah, daughter of Thomas Freame, of Philadelphia in North America, by Margaretta, daughter of the well-known William Penn, founder of that city. He died, without surviving issue, 1 March 1813, in his 88th year, when the Barony of Dartrey and the Viscountcy of Cremorne became extinct, but the Barony of Cremorne devolved (according to the special remainder) on his great-nephew, Richard Thomas Dawson, whose son, the 3rd Baron, was created, 12 July 1866, EARL OF DARTREY.

The arms, (Azure, three torches erect, argent, inflamed gules) quartered (in the 2nd and 3rd quarters) with those of Dawson, are not given in Archdall's "Lodge's Peerage of Ireland" (1789) under the Viscountcy of Cremorne. They are presumably* those of Dawson of Dawson's Grove, the heiress of which family married, in Nov. 1672, Walter Dawson, of Armagh, by whom she was grandmother of the first Peer. They are continued as a quartering by the present [1902] Peer.

The supporters, ("Two weavers, habited proper, each holding in his exterior hand a shuttle,") are entirely different from those of the present Peer.

G. E. C.

* Mr. G. D. Burtchaell, of the College of Arms, Dublin, writes on this point as under: "The quarterly coat is somewhat puzzling. When the first Lord was raised to the Peerage, his arms, in THE LORDS ENTRIES, have the 2nd and 3rd quarters blank, which looks as if William Hawkins, Ulster, was not satisfied with them. The only explanation seems to be, that they are intended for Dawson of Dawson's Grove. The seals on wills before the marriage with that heiress have only the plain coat."

Memoranda of William Curtoys,

[NOTE.—These Memoranda are contained in a very small note-book, measuring 4½ by 3 inches, which has been carefully preserved. The writing is usually clear and good, but occasionally much cramped. The order, it will be seen, is not always strictly chronological. The entries printed first are entirely of a family nature; those beginning at the other end of the book and printed second are more general, though they begin with the solemn and interesting record of the renewal of the baptismal vow and reception of the Holy Eucharist by the writer on the twenty-first anniversary of his baptism. That and the earlier entries are in Latin, the rest in English. The Rev. W. F. CURTOYS will be glad to communicate with any reader who can throw light upon persons or families herein alluded to.]

Reviews.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XI., Parts 11, 12, 13, and 14, for November 1901 to February 1902. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE November Part enlarges upon the number of foreign journals following the footsteps of our English product; thus the Editor complains of his German colleague "Ex Libris Zeitschrift" not sending Numbers in collective order; then he notices the journal of the French collectors, and gives us a good account of its contents; then the October Number of "Zeitschrift für Bücherfreunde" he reviews, and again its November Number; lastly, from Switzerland in its "Archives Heraldiques Suisses" for 1901; and from the German Bookplate Society the Editor is going to cull, from the pen of Count Leiningen-Westerburg, the blocks of all the Royal plates, which will keep alive the memory of her late Most Gracious Majesty. In the "Queen" for November 1901 is an able Paper by Sir Arthur Vicars, and the "Studio" is also referred to for its lengthy article, well illustrated, of the "Art of Gordon Craig," with many examples. Last, not least, in the "American Printer" for November, with its own notes on bookplates, three of which are represented, is a review by the Editor of a new periodical entitled "Acadiensis," published at St. John, New Brunswick. The Part has as an introduction the arms of C. Ellis Stevens of Philadelphia, and is a good example of engraving and mantling; and there are also some excellent examples of skill by Mr. William Edgar, delicate and apropos, the sporting plate of Silvanus Macy being full of good drawing. The plates for identification now reach 485.

The December Number is well illustrated by the arms of Her late Majesty, as reproduced by Count Leiningen-Westerburg, which makes it a valuable one, as the arms are elaborately drawn. The life of William Hewer, begun by Mr. Arthur J. Jewers in the November Part, is here continued by Mr. Cecil T. Davis, and his arms given. The writer makes the account very interesting by his associating Pepys and John Evelyn of Wotton with it, and by his knowledge of Hewer's connections. There is the plate drawn for the Lowell Memorial Library, and with it a good description; and also the bookplate of William Hugh Patterson of Belfast, having a smaller one suspended from it. The plate has the portrait of the gentleman given, and is surrounded by a shamrock border. This practice had better not be indulged in too much in heraldry, as every tinker and tailor will have his arms to give away, if even procured from 'Appy 'Ampstead for a sixpenny photograph. An article by Mr. Charles Dexter Allen, with the plate of Dr. Van Dyke's shewn, and in which he announces a "College of Heraldry in America," is interesting.

The Part for January has for frontispiece the two plates of the Empress Frederick of Germany, and also a small oval label which the Empress might place on it, possibly made adhesive. Each is very chaste, worthy of the illustrious lady so esteemed in England. There is a letter also from Mr. W. F. Prideaux, completing the account of Hewer Edgley Hewer commenced by Mr. A. J. Jewers in the November Part. The writer also draws the attention of his readers to the error of coupling the Latin "Ex Libris" with English names, and he instances "Ex Libris Sylvanus" as one which would meet with correction in any school. As he says, why should Latin be employed on English bookplates any more than on modern tombstones? The Editor closes this Part with the usual Title and Contents, and a painstaking Index.

The February Part (which has been delayed until the middle of March, more through the Editor having a giant's task to perform monthly with barely any assistance from his compeers) opens with a Paper on Sir Philip Sydenham by Carnegy Johnson, and the frontispiece is a large arms of Sydenham with profuse mantling; there are six other arms of his also given. The account of Hewer is next taken up by Mr. Alfred A. Bethune-Baker, F.S.A., who gives another coat to him while he was at Clapham, and while he kept up a London establishment between 1710—1728. The Part still carries on the Bookplates of Medical Men, and the plates for identification now reach 497. Its other contents are but meagre.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. No. 3, Vol. IX. January 1902. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Part commences with the letters of William Bird of Westoner, Virginia, and many instances are given of the original animals which were found on the native soil when first settlements were made, there being in Georgia plenty of cattle and hogs, sheep and goats, and particularly a large creature of the beef kind, being the buffalo, which may be bred up tame, and is good both for food and labour. Besides these there are vineyards which twist round every tree, and where from the mulberry trees they could produce silk to any extent, and also as fine a flax as any in the universe for linen manufacture. Hemp also can be raised for cordage, and there is also a silk grass which is much stronger than hemp. Of oil from nuts there could be produced any quantity, and there is also what is called a sugar tree, from which could be drawn spirits equal to arrack. Such was North Carolina about 1735. Other interesting Papers follow. In one entitled Henry County is a table giving the quantity of tobacco each paid towards the County Rate; thus the Clerk was assessed at 1248 "thyables" of 27 lbs. tobacco per poll, and it comes down to 25 for one day's guard, shewing what a powerful agent tobacco was then, as 500 were paid for maintaining a prisoner thirteen days. There are the genealogies of the families of Adams, Brookes, Herndon, Farrar, and Fowler given, as well as Notes and Queries respecting other families.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. V., Part 52. January 1902. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part commences with a short account of Raimond Guches, a Huguenot, the bold and earnest champion of the cause in 1660, who single-handed stood out among the mass of corruption gathered round Louis XIV. Another Paper by Henry Peet, Esq., gives an account of Mr. James Coleman, a Tottenham bookseller, who had purchased a bundle of parchments, among which was a leaf containing 200 entries of marriages solemnized in St. Mary's Church, Whittlesey, dated 1662 to 1672. How such a practice of tearing up registers should have been going on in modern days, when such a scholar as Dr. Henry Burgess was vicar at St. Andrew's, Whittlesey, a neighbouring church to St. Mary's, from 1861 to 1870 upwards, we cannot understand, as he was a scholar of vast ability, and published a work in Coptic, besides being editor of the "Journal of Sacred Literature" for some years, during which time he must have had such documents under his care. Mr. Peet says the registers are virtually destroyed, consisting now of about thirty-six loose fragments of portions of parchment leaves, gall-stained, mildewed, and moth-eaten, and almost undecipherable. Not a page is perfect. Only one thin folio volume is saved, covering the years 1683, 1688—1694.

THE REGISTER SOCIETY.

WE are pleased to see the progress this Society is making in printing the smaller registers of English counties. Since 1896 there were five a year issued, and in 1899 as many as ten registers, some only making twenty-four pages, while others extended to hundreds of pages, and each supplied with an Index Locorum and an Index Nominum. We thus see that with few exceptions there is a fair chance of every register being published. Our own Magazine began it when nothing of the kind had been attempted; our Publishers published several at their own cost, and then the Harleian Society, with its separate funds and membership, printed every year one or two, and combatted what a weaker society could not venture upon, by printing the Registers of St. James, Clerkenwell, in six volumes. There are some still requiring to be printed, but the expense of transcribing and printing have hitherto stood in the way. The most valuable we know of are the Registers of St. Anne, Soho, making possibly six volumes, and containing as they do the birth of a Royal Prince, besides being the home of so many of the aristocracy, these being followed by the historians, speakers, musicians, and the general art world of 1700 and 1800, the fashionable world still going westward, beginning with St. George's in the Bayswater district about the middle of 1700. The parish churchyard is also the last home of hundreds of Huguenots, who fled from France and settled in Soho about 1500 until 1700. A member of the Vestry of Soho has done great service in saving its registers from mildew and damp by adopting a separate iron safe instead of having them enclosed between brick walls with iron back and front, which the Rector soon found was no improvement upon a wooden cupboard. Each book has been preserved with tissue paper at the edges where at all giving way, thus preserving the writing, and the whole registers now make thirty-seven large folio volumes, half-bound in green vellum, and each book lettered on the back whether baptisms, marriages, or burials, and dated consecutively. Thus the little parish of Soho has done single-handed what even the wealthy parish of St. George's or St. Martin's have not yet begun, beyond one volume published by the latter parish in conjunction with the Harleian Society, and this has all been done in Soho by gentlemen who were in the Vestry, and who knew the task they had undertaken, seconded as they were by the public spirit of the Rector and their fellow members. A case in point where disaster has been almost complete is the parish of Whittlesey, Cambridgeshire, where the registers about 1690 are in a most deplorable state, and have also suffered from ill-usage by some irresponsible meddler. It was first discovered by Mr. Coleman, a Tottenham bookseller, among an odd lot of parchments which he bought, who found a leaf containing 200 entries of marriages in St. Mary's Church between 1662 and 1672. He kindly returned the leaf to the then Vicar of Whittlesey, and besides published a pamphlet of eight pages of these marriages. The Rev. W. D. Sweeting, the Editor of "Fenland Notes and Queries," a notice of which we give above, writes: "The oldest register is 1560; for upwards of 100 years they are unbound, detached leaves much worn, and in many cases illegible." Some leaves are torn from top to bottom, and this must have been done since 1827, for a note written then by a churchwarden is also itself torn in half. If the Register Society will rescue what is still left of these registers, now is the time to do it, and may success attend their labours, both in this case and in many others.

BEALE FAMILY.

Can any reader of the "Mis. Gen. et Her." state to what branch of the above family belonged the Rev. John Beale, instituted to the Rectory of North Wraxall 8 September 1676? His first wife Ann died there in 1681, and (possibly) his second wife Elizabeth in 1738. He died August 1697 and was buried there.

LANGSTROTH OR LANGSTRETH FAMILY.

During the preparation of my Work on "The Langstaffs of Teesdale and Weardale," I have collected a good deal of information relative to the family of Langstroth or Langstreth. This I will be happy to place at the disposal of any one interested in that family. The name seems to be quite distinct from Langstaff, whereas Langstraffe is certainly, Langstrop probably, a mere variant of Langstaff.

In Memoriam.

JOSEPH JACKSON HOWARD, LL.D., F.S.A.,

MALTRAVERS HERALD EXTRAORDINARY.

THE Subscribers to the "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica" will have heard with much regret of the death of Dr. Joseph Jackson Howard, who originated this Magazine in 1866, and has edited it with such marked ability ever since. It seems therefore fitting that a short memoir of his life should appear in the first issue after his death.

Joseph Jackson Howard of Mayfield, Blackheath, was born on the 12th of April 1827, being the only son of Peter Howard of Woodside in Cheshire by Jane Hayston, daughter of Ralph Prince of Mount Vernon Priory, Edge Hill, Liverpool. He was christened at St. Mary's, Edge Hill, on the 14th of June in the same year, and married on the 26th of July 1862, at St. Mark's, Kennington, Ellen Clara, daughter of Joshua West and Mary Ann his wife. He died on the 18th of April 1902 at the residence of his son, Fairlight, Hampton Hill, and was buried on the 22nd of the same month at Twickenham Cemetery. His widow survives him, as also an only son, Dr. A. Dashwood Howard. He was admitted Pensioner at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, on the 17th of June 1845, graduated LL.B. in 1854, and took his LL.D. degree in 1859.

Dr. Howard's business life was spent in the Civil Service, which he entered as a junior clerk in the Accountant-General's Office at the General Post Office on the 10th of October 1851, rising to be a principal clerk on the 13th of May 1867. He retired in April 1888, after thirty-seven years' continual service. He was popular in the Office, and was a much respected Civil Servant. He was also one of the Pioneers of Civil Service Co-operative Stores, and started the "Post Office Supply" in the Receiver and Accountant Generals' Offices at the Post Office, and was made Chairman of the Society. Persons from other offices were allowed to join, and this eventually developed into the Civil Service Supply Association, Limited, of which he was Chairman.

Very early in life he acquired a taste for heraldry and genealogy, spending nearly all his leisure on these pursuits. He became a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries on the 2nd of February 1854, and at the time of his death was eighth in seniority of such Fellows. For several years he made frequent contributions to their Meetings, principally by exhibiting ancient pedigrees, grants of arms, and heraldic seals from ancient deeds, all of which are very fully recorded in the printed Proceedings of that Society and in the "Archæologia." He was instrumental in 1860 (in conjunction with the late Sir A. W. Franks) in collecting materials for an Exhibition of Civic Plate, which was held in the Society's Rooms then at Somerset House, and the year following he contributed a similar Exhibition of Seals. In May 1862 (in conjunction with T. W. King, Esq., F.S.A., York Herald) he collected materials for an Exhibition of Heraldry, which was also held in the Society's Rooms, and for which he received the especial thanks of the Society.

To the more recent Heraldic Exhibition, held at the Society's present Rooms in Burlington House in 1894 (of which an illustrated catalogue was published), Dr. Howard was a considerable contributor, and was also a member of the Committee.

He was an indefatigable collector, and was one of the earliest, if not the first, who commenced a collection of Armorial Bookplates, which collection it is believed is unique, being valuable not only for its magnitude, but for the scarcity and brilliancy of most of the specimens it contains. He also made a splendid collection of Armorial China, not improbably the choicest in existence.

He was, however, best known to the readers of the "Miscellanea" as a prolific writer. No correspondent ever wrote to him in vain, and he spared neither time nor trouble to give to all, whether acquaintances or strangers, the best information he had on genealogical and heraldic subjects, without expecting or receiving any recompence whatever. His charming manner and readiness to help in any investigation endeared him to all who came in contact with him, either personally or by correspondence. He might well be called the leader of a new school of genealogists, who sought for truth and accuracy and for evidence of all their statements. The desire to spread these principles led him to initiate the publication of this Journal so long as thirty-six years ago, and fortunate are those Subscribers who possess a complete set of the Work, the two volumes which complete the original series being extremely rare. Some idea of the daily labour devoted to this task may be realized by looking back on the earlier Numbers, which are full of every kind of information, embellished by facsimiles of numerous illuminated grants of arms and hundreds of bookplates, mostly from his own collection. It has been announced that the publication of this Journal will be continued.

He had a great taste for heraldic engraving, and would never employ a second-class artist for any work. Some of his happiest hours were spent in discussing with his friends the respective merits of the best heraldic artists.

It is, however, by Dr. Howard's connection with the Harleian Society that perhaps he is best known to genealogists. He was one of the founders of that Society, and acted as Honorary Treasurer from the day of its foundation in 1869 to the end of last year. He edited for the Society (in conjunction with his co-founder the Honorary Secretary) the first volume of its publications, "The Visitation of London in the Year 1568, taken by Robert Cooke," and he also edited (in conjunction with the late Colonel Chester) "The Visitation of London, 1633-35, made by Sir Henry St. George." This work, in two volumes, was illustrated with over 800 coats of arms engraved by Cleghorn and Utting. In 1861 he edited for the Kent Archæological Society (and also printed privately), pedigrees from "Philipot's Visitation of Kent in 1619." In 1866 he edited for the "East Anglian" and also printed separately, two volumes of "Harvey's Visitation of Suffolk in 1561," containing twenty-one pedigrees of the families of Chetham, Clopton, Colt, Cordell, Crane, Daniell, Eden, Fultneby, Hervey, Heigham, Holt, Kempe, Kytson, Lucas, Martin, Payne, Peyton, Poley, Smyth, Spring, and Warburton, all of which are annotated.

In July 1866 he commenced the issue of the "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica" in Quarterly Numbers at 2*s.* 6*d.* each. This, however, subsequently became a monthly publication at 1*s.*, and so continued until it was concluded in four volumes, entitled the "New Series," a title not to be confused with the "Second Series" which followed in January 1884, and was completed in five volumes. A Third Series was begun in March 1894, reverting to the Quarterly Numbers, and is still in progress, being now in its fifth volume.

In 1887 he commenced a collection of Privately Printed Pedigrees, illustrating the History of Roman Catholic Families in England, based on the Lawson Manuscript. This most valuable and elaborate work, which contains, however, but six large and fully annotated pedigrees, viz., Fermor, Petre, Hunloke, Phelips, Arundell, and Hornyold, was discontinued in 1895.

In 1887 (in conjunction with Mr. Robert Hovenden) he printed "Some Pedigrees from the Visitation of Kent, from 1663 to 1668." There are, however, but twelve of these pedigrees, all with copious annotations, viz., Dade, Edolph, Gokin, Jordan, Kitchell, Langworth, Lynch, Petley, Scott, Seyliard, Sheafe, and Turner. He also edited in 1888 Sir Edward Bysshe's "Visitation of the County of Essex, 1664—68."

In 1893 he embarked with F. A. Crisp, Esq., F.S.A., on a joint work (privately printed for Subscribers only), entitled "The Visitation of England and Wales," of which nine volumes have been issued with three volumes of notes, and which is still in progress. It contains very full pedigrees of existing families carried out on the principle of the older Visitations, the evidence being confined to no more than two generations older or younger than the informant. This work is embellished with many engravings of arms and signatures.

In 1897 Dr. Howard and Mr. Crisp commenced a similar publication relating to Irish families.

It is satisfactory to know that these Visitations and Notes will be continued.

He printed in 1894 (in conjunction with H. F. Burke, Esq., F.S.A., Somerset Herald), for private circulation, a book called "Theydon Mount: its Lords and Rectors" (notably of the family of Smith, of Hill Hall, Baronets), with a complete transcript of the Parish Registers and Monumental Inscriptions.

He issued in 1895 a volume of facsimiles of Baronets' Bookplates from his own collection, called the "Wardour Press Series."

Dr. Howard was on the Council of the Kent and Surrey Archæological Societies from their foundation. He was a constant contributor on Antiquarian subjects to "Notes and Queries," "The Athenæum," and many other periodicals.

On the 26th of November 1887 "the Queen was graciously pleased, on the nomination of His Grace the Earl Marshal, to appoint Joseph Jackson Howard, Esq., to be Maltravers Herald Extraordinary," a distinction well earned and deserved by one of the most painstaking and energetic of our genealogists.

Alice, Duchess Dudley.

In the note at p. 283, in continuation of the account of the "Family of the Dudleys" (Vol. IV., pp. 259—263), it is suggested that an abstract of the will of this lady, giving all relations named, would be interesting. The will is a very long one, taken up for the most part by charitable bequests, of which particulars are given in the above account; but the will is disappointing as regards the lady's relations, as shewn by the following abstract, which gives the chief points omitted in that notice, and mentions all relations named. It may be mentioned here that the copy of her epitaph printed in the "New View of London" is incorrect in many minor details, as shewn by a careful copy of all the inscriptions in the church of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, which it is hoped will be printed before long, but the second part of the inscription, with the arms, etc., has entirely disappeared.

Arthur J. Jewers.

2. JOHN ADAMS, R.N., Rear-Admiral of the White; born February 1793; entered the Royal Navy 8 June 1806 as a first-class Volunteer on board the "Scout, 18," Captain William Raitt, under whom during a period of three years and a half he saw much active service, bore a part in many gun-boat actions, and among other vessels assisted in destroying, after a sharp engagement, a notorious privateer, the "Fort of Gibraltar." He was also present as a Midshipman in a very gallant encounter off Genoa between the boats of the "Scout" and a French Squadron, consisting of a brig of 20 guns, one of 18, and seven gun-boats protected by a heavy fire from several batteries on shore, in face of which the largest of the enemy's vessels was sunk and the remainder beaten off, with a loss, however, to the British of the Master and eleven men killed and upwards of thirty wounded. On the night of 31 October 1809 Mr. Adams further served in the boats of the "Scout" and of a squadron under Lieut. John Tailour* at the capture and destruction, after a fearful struggle and a loss to the assailants of 15 men killed and 55 wounded, of the armed store-ship "Lamproire" of 16 guns and 116 men, the bombards "Victoire" and "Grondeur," and the armed zebec "Normande," with a convoy of seven merchantmen defended by numerous strong batteries in the Bay of Rosas. Removing next in succession to the "Voluntaire" and "Cambrian" frigates, both commanded by Captain Charles Bullen, he joined in various cutting-out affairs, witnessed the reduction of the Island of Pomégue near Marseilles, and co-operated in the defence of Tarragona in May and June 1811 until the receipt of his Lieutenant's Commission, dated 15 February 1815; appointed to the "Ajax, 74," Captain George Mundy, 31 May 1815, and the "Hind," Captain Sir Charles Burrard, 17 April 1819 (O'Byrne's "Naval Biography"). He joined the "Ajax,"† and in her was present at the bombardment of Algiers 27 August 1816 by the British Fleet under Lord Exmouth (Family Reg.). He afterwards served in the Channel and Mediterranean, on board the "Bulwark, 74," Captains Sir Richard King and Thomas Brown, the "Christian VII., 80,"‡ Captain

* Of the Swords family.

† Launched in 1808, and replaced the "Ajax" which had been burnt in 1807 (James' "Naval History," 1847, vol. v., p. 3).

‡ This line of battleship was pierced for eighty-four guns and was added to the British Navy, the result of the siege of Copenhagen in 1807. She measured 2,131 tons, and was built in 1803 by the Danes. The model of the "Christian VII." was so much admired that a ship in every respect the same was immediately ordered to be built for the British Navy. That ship was the "Cambridge" of 2,139 tons, launched in 1815 (James' "Naval History," vol. iv., p. 295. London, 1847).

Henry Lidgbird Ball, and the "Grasshopper, 18," Captains Henry Robert Battersby and Sir Charles Burrard; appointed 24 September 1822 to the "Windsor Castle, 74," Captain Charles Dashwood, of the tender belonging to which ship he was for some time entrusted with the command; 12 January 1824 as First Lieutenant to the "Grasshopper, 18," Captain John George Aplin; 3 November 1824 to the command, on the Newfoundland station, of the "Pelter" gun-brig; 1 March 1826 to the "Ramillies, 74," Captain Hugh Pigot, by whom he was also invested with the charge of a tender; 20 October 1826 and 17 September 1828 as Senior to the "Harrier" and "Childers" sloops, both commanded by Captain William Morier (for his exertions in saving the latter, which was nearly wrecked in a violent gale off Yarmouth, he received the approbation of the Admiralty); 4 May 1829 in a similar capacity to the "Atholl, 28," Captain Alexander Gordon, on the coast of Africa; 6 January 1830 to the command of the "Plumper, 12," on the same station, where in a small gig with only five men he gallantly effected the capture, 7 November 1830, of the "Maria" of six guns and forty-four men, having on board 512 slaves, and was otherwise very successful; 28 July 1831 as First Lieutenant to the "Alfred, 50," Captain Robert Maunsell, in the Mediterranean, and 17 November 1834 to the command of the "Waterwitch, 10," in which vessel he served under the orders of Lord John Hay on the north coast of Spain, and was again successful in his anti-slavery exertions on the African station, attaining the rank of Commander 10 January 1837. He was appointed 19 January 1839 to the "Acorn, 16," destined for the same service, as was latterly the "Waterwitch." Returning therefore to the coast of Africa, he renewed his operations against the negro traffic during a prolonged service of four years and eight months, during part of which period he had charge of the station and squadron at Mozambique, cruising with wonderful activity and good fortune. Among the prodigious number of prizes made by the "Acorn" we may instance the capture, 6 July 1841, after a three days' chase and a running fight, of the "Gabriel," a piratical slave-brig, notorious for its injury to commerce and the frequency of its insults to the British Flag. His long, arduous, and highly useful services were at length rewarded, on his return to England, with a Post Commission, dated 18 December 1843. In 1849 he held the Civil appointment of Slave Commissioner at Loango (O'Byrne's "Naval Biography," p. 4); was appointed 4 January 1850 Captain of the "Gladiator, 6" on the African coast, and 10 April 1854 to the "Scourge, 6," and Commodore of the African Squadron, Governor of Ascension Island, etc. In 1862 was offered but declined the Governorship of Greenwich Hospital. Became Rear-Admiral of the Blue 6 February 1863, and of the White 5 March 1864. Received the Naval Silver Medal and nine clasps, a good-service pension, and medals from the Royal Humane Society for saving on different occasions eleven persons from drowning. Married first, 21 September 1838 (Ardbraccan Par. Reg.), Mary Anne, daughter of Thomas Gerrard, Esq., J.P., of Liscarton Castle, co. Meath, who died s.p. August 1843 at Bettystown, co. Meath, aged 27, and was interred 25 August 1843 at Donaghpatrick, co. Meath (Donaghpatrick Par. Reg.); secondly, 22 April 1846, Elizabeth Hurst, daughter of Henry Ellis, Esq., of Mount Steward, co. Dublin, and Eccles Street, Dublin, who died at Folkestone in Kent 11 May 1891 suddenly from the effects of influenza, aged 70. Admiral John Adams died 17 December 1866, and was interred at Westonsuper-Mare. By his second marriage he had one son and two daughters:—

Memoranda of William Curtoys,

[Note.—These Memoranda are contained in a very small note-book, measuring 4½ by 3 inches, which has been carefully preserved. The writing is usually clear and good, but occasionally much cramped. The order, it will be seen, is not always strictly chronological. The entries printed first are entirely of a family nature; those beginning at the other end of the book and printed second are more general, though they begin with the solemn and interesting record of the renewal of the baptismal vow and reception of the Holy Eucharist by the writer on the twenty-first anniversary of his baptism. That and the earlier entries are in Latin, the rest in English. The Rev. W. F. Curtoys will be glad to communicate with any reader who can throw light upon persons or families herein alluded to.]

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. V., Part 53. April 1902. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part contains some interesting documents respecting the drainage of the Fens, which seems to have required a great deal of attention and vast sums. During Charles I. and Charles II.'s reigns the taxation was large, and in James's time the second tax was a double one, and a third was called for, and even Londoners were assessed at £80. The King had a great aversion to the Commons on account of supplies he was continually wanting. He wanted £150,000 a year and looked to the Fens to obtain it. The Whittlesey Parish Marriage Registers are next given where they can be decipherable. on one leaf of 100 entries only ten being legible. The Registers of St. Mary's in Whittlesey are added for 1683; in many cases leaves are missing, some are torn across with one half leaf, and others are detached, lying quite loose. The book only consists of eighteen leaves of paper in leather, and contains entries of baptisms and of burials from 1683 to 1694. Surely the Parish Register Society ought to make a visit to Cambridgeshire a special one, so as to embrace the county, except a Local Society is started, such as is being done for the county of Surrey at the present time. The Editor is enabled to announce that the Duke of Bedford is going to defray the cost of printing the Thorney French Registers under the auspices of the Huguenot Society, with Mr. Henry Peet, F.S.A., as editor.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XII., Parts 3, 4, and 5, March to May 1902. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE March Part is embellished by two separate plates, which render it very acceptable. The one forming the frontispiece shews a circular library with the symbols of the arts and sciences shewn on the foreground, and at the top the portrait of the celebrated Dr. J. C. W. Moehsen, hung with tapestry on both sides; it is dated 1 September 1753. The whole forms a massive and well proportioned bookplate, and the portrait is in that Georgian style which was so popular a century ago. There is an article on Musical Bookplates by J. F. Verster, and the Editor has another on "Art in Modern Bookplates," in which he ably combats the opinion of Mr. Dennis in The Artist. The Ireland Bookplates are next given, with a brief account of the gifted young man allowed to go wrong, the son of a man "Shakespere mad," who cast him off when not yet nineteen years old only for his own selfish sake after the son's confession. When pondered on, what a sacrifice of talent to imitate ink, parchment, time-stained vellum, and all to deceive, whereas it is said he was going to write dramas on history from William the Conqueror downwards! The wonder is that in that grand period of English literature from 1800 to 1835 there was no one found to have given the misdirected young man advice so as to have utilized his talents in a more successful way, as he seems to have passed away unnoticed about 1835. He wrote on one occasion, "I was for twelve months at Dr. Barrow's Academy in Soho Square, and the dismal play performed by the scholars at the breaking up was Shakespere's tragedy of King Lear." Years after he wrote on old paper and in a disguised hand the spurious manuscripts concocted at the time. The arms of the Rev. W. B. Barrow, LL.D., are given, addressed at foot, "Academy, Soho Square, 1789."

The April Part opens with a good account of the late Cecil John Rhodes, with his plate, a rarity which very few have. Had an artist designed it for a drawing-room picture it might have been engraved like that of the death of Moore, but to utilize it as a bookplate is merely a subterfuge, as it represents him trading with the natives on the first landing of the Dutch at the Cape. There is a pleasing account by Mr. Cecil T. Davis of Dr. Andrew Coltee Ducarel with his arms given, who was appointed Librarian of the Lambeth Palace Library; and a good impression is given of the bookplate of the Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, designed by Miss C. Helard. The plates of Medical Men are still continued, and the arms for identification now number 505.

The May Part being upwards of a month late prevents us going into any detail of its contents, only to remark that it may be called the Royal Number, having King Edward's Arms as the frontispiece, and the two smaller ones for the Royal Library, all etched by Mr. George W. Eve, in his usual dexterous manner, marking him out as a draughtsman second to none. We congratulate the Editor of the "Ex Libris Journal" upon having the privilege of publishing these coats at such an opportune time. The other contents comprise an article on Exeter Cathedral Library, with two representations of its seal, one of 1749, another of 1822; and there follows a short account of Lord Nelson's bookplates.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. No. 4, Vol. IX. April 1902. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THE Number begins with an interesting account of the Germans in the Shenandoah Valley, and what a magnificent aspect the whole bore after the fatigue of days travelling. The Virginia Legislative documents are next treated of, and abridgement of the Laws in 1694. The interest in the Part is the publication of the John Brown letters, long looked for but only found in the Virginia State Library in 1901. Mr. Scott the Librarian had made enquiries about these letters in 1894, but was told that every librarian since the war had exhausted all means of finding them, but without success. It was only a final searching for a state document, which had been missing, that the dust-covered bundle of John Brown's papers came to light. To Americans the papers will be very interesting, as well as the account of the battle of Point Pleasant, when the first troops were raised after the cargo of tea had been thrown into the sea by the people of Boston. A distinguished writer, who saw the troops, said they were the finest set of men that were ever got together on this continent. An account of Henry County from 1776, Notes and Queries, and several genealogical entries and accounts of families, likewise the Title and Index, close the Part.

Witnesses and date the same as the above Deed.

[This and the previous Deed have this Seal attached to them.]

With the exception of the few in the possession of Mr. Richard Savage, all the above deeds and papers are from the muniment cupboard at Savage's House in Tachbrooke, now the property of Miss C. Landor of Cannington Grange; there are many more similar deeds, but these extracts are printed for evidence that the Savages were a yeoman family indigenous at and about Tachbrooke from such early times as to argue that they were a family to themselves with no connection with the Savages of Rock-Savage and Elmeley Castle. These deeds do not prove the steps of a pedigree earlier than Queen Elizabeth's time, but they do shew the continued existence of a family dealing with the same fields from the time of King Edward IV. After all its vicissitudes in the Savage family the estate in Tachbrooke was sold by Walter Savage Landor in 1809 to the Earl of Warwick, but the house remained in the family. The arms engraved on page 1, Vol. V., are: (1) Landor, (2) Taylor, (3) Constantine, (4) Unknown.

The Family of Aldworth,†

ANCESTORS IN THE MALE LINE OF THE BARONS BRAYBROOKE.

RICHARD ALDWORTHE of Tilehurst, co. Berks, clothmaker. He probably came from Wantage, where there were many families of the name. (The entries in the Wantage Registers, 1540—1700, referring to persons of the name of Aldworth, number 422.) His son Thomas in his will mentions his cousin John Aldworth, tanner, of Wantage. Richard Aldworthe married Elizabeth (surname probably Gerying), who survived him, and whose will bears date 4 March, 4 Edward VI. He was buried in "the pyshe churche of Tylhurst in the mydle ylee before the rood," which shews that he was a person of importance. His will is dated 8 November 1543. He had issue :—

I. THOMAS of Reading, clothier, a burgess of Reading from 1541 till his death. He was four times Mayor of Reading, in 1551, when he received King Edward VI. in great state (for the expenses incurred on this occasion see the Reading Records), in 1557, in 1561, and in 1572. He was elected M.P. for Reading in 1557. He died in 1576, and was buried in the Church of St. Lawrence. By his wife Alice (? Symonde), who survived him (will dated 25 Nov. 1585), he had issue :—

i. THOMAS, mentioned in his grandmother's will 1550 (? bapt. 1538).
ii. ROBERT, who inherited a house at Tilehurst.
iii. SYMONDE or SYMON, Constable of Reading. (See Star Chamber Proceedings, temp. Elizabeth, Addenda, Bundle 1, No. 4, "concerning the arrest of Simon Aldworth, Constable, while guarding royal treasure.")
iv. HENRY, a surety in some Reading municipal money transactions in 1589. Buried in the Church of Arbourfield, near Reading (will dated 29 July 1596). By his wife Katherin he had issue :—

THOMAS, and six other children (names not mentioned). Thomas inherited a house in Reading.

v. JOAN DUNSCOMBE.
vi. ALICE PYLE, executrix of her mother's will.

* Eaten by mice. † Communicated by C. J. AUBERTIN, Esq.

II. WILLIAM, of Sulhampstead Abbot, near Reading. Inherited a house in Tilehurst after his mother's decease. He died in 1552. By his wife Elizabeth he had issue two sons:—

I. BARTHOLOMEW.

II. RALF, godson to his grandfather.

III. RICHARD, clothier, who inherited lands in "Sollomsted and Sheffeld." Burgess of Reading from 1566 till his death. He was thrice Mayor of Reading, in 1577, 1585, and 1594. He died in his Mayoralty 12 July 1594. The churchwardens of St. Mary's paid vj s. and viij d. for his grave and the tolling of the great bell. He left money towards building the new steeple of St. Mary's and for "paving the waye and alley that leadeth from St. Lawrence Church to the Eldehall stayres with pible." His portrait is now in the Council Chamber at Reading. By his wife Julian or Gelian, who predeceased him (bur. 18 January 1593), he had issue:—

I. RICHARD, baptized 13 April 1539. Elected a burgess of Reading in 1573, and fined iiij d. "quia venit tarde." He was buried 12 July 1584. On 28 January 1571-2 he married Jane, daughter of Clement South, by whom he had (with two daughters, Alice, born 1578, and Ursula, born 1580) an only son,

RICHARD, baptized 10 June 1576, one of the Company of Skinners, to whom he left a piece of plate. He is styled in his will (dated 21 December 1646, with several codicils, the last of which bears date 2 January 1648-9) as of St. Mary Maudlin, Milk Street. He appears to have been extremely wealthy. He left £4000 to Reading and £2000 to Basingstoke to found a Blue Coat School in either town, after the model of Christ's Hospital, with a "godly and learned schoolmaster, to teach them to read, write, and cipher, and the Katechisme," the children to have "convenient bedsteades, all of them to be fitted with decent and convenient bedds, boulsters, sheets, blanketts, coverlettes and all other furniture." They are to be "dyetted" as are the children in Christ's Hospital, London, and are to have "shoes, hoasen, linnen and woollen—their upper garment to be a blue coate with a blue cap." He left also a house in Reading, adjoining the Churchyard of "Maries," to provide £20 per annum for an "orthodox devine, to preach a lecture every week and visit the sick when called upon." There were also charities to provide thirty cloth gowns yearly, and thirty loaves every Sabbath day, as well as numerous bequests, ranging from £1000 to £5, to kinsmen and retainers. He bequeathed the remainder of his fortune (together with land at Woollaston, co. Northampton, and at Westham, co. Essex) to the governors of Christ's Hospital, "upon condition that they provide a convenient place for the children to be educated in writing, cyphering, katechising, and the understanding of the Latin Tongue." The Skinners' Company were to have five nominations. He left money and mourning to the family of his cousin Richard Aldworth of London, deceased (of whom later), and also to his "kinsman" or cousin Richard Aldworth of Wargrave and Hinton Pipard, whom he also releases from a mortgage of £2000. He also mentions various members of Richard of Wargrave's family (of whom later, as the direct ancestors of Lord Braybrooke). The testator's will was not proved till 1654, as there seems to have been some dispute raised by the Puritans as to the form of Catechism intended to be taught. He apparently married a lady of the name of Charke, and had one daughter, who seems to have predeceased him, married to Richard Shaxton.

[NOTE.—The number of Richard Aldworths alive at this time makes it somewhat difficult to place them. This Richard was almost certainly the son of Richard Aldworth, junior, as has been shewn, for (1) he says he was born in Reading, (2) his executor was Thomas South, and he mentions other members of the South family, whom he calls his kinsmen (his father married Jane South, as above). At any rate it was this Richard who founded the Bluecoat School, and not Richard of Ruscombe, ancestor of Lord Braybrooke, to whom this action is ascribed in a published pedigree,* which I have been able to correct and amplify, as well as verify in many particulars. For Richard of Ruscombe, whom we know from the Royalist Composition Papers to have been much impoverished, is mentioned by name (and called kinsman and cousin) in the will of the Richard at present under discussion.]

II. GILBERT (second son of Richard Aldworth, Mayor), baptized 16 June 1545; elected a burgess of Reading in 1580. Married 21 June 1573 Mary Fittes, and died 1587, having had by her :—

1. JOHN, born 1576.
2. GILBERT, born 1580; Surveyor of Highways at Reading 1606.
3. MARY, born 1574.
4. ELIZABETH, born 1583.

III. JOHN, baptized 10 September 1547, his father's executor; inherited lands in Burfield and Sulhampstead; married 3 May 1585 Phœbe Fittes.

IV. PETER, baptized 1 April 1549. By his wife Alice he left at his death, which occurred in 1580, a son,

RICHARD, who almost certainly is "my cousin, Richard Aldworth of London," mentioned as already deceased in the will of Richard Aldworth, founder of the Bluecoat School.† He was of St. Augustine's, Paul's Gate, and was a Merchant Taylor. He married Margaret (? Coulson), and in his will dated 1624 (but proved 1633) he states that he was born in Reading, and mentions his children :—

(1) RICHARD, not yet of age in 1624.
(2) SUSAN.
(3) ELIZABETH.
(4) MARGARET.
(5) FRANCES.

V. CATHARINE, married 1579 to Barnabie Hatch.

VI. ANNE, married 1579 to Peter Hardye.

VII. ELIZABETH, married to John Austill.

VIII. ALICE, married to James Matthewes.

IX. AGNES (youngest daughter), born 1560; married 1588 to Francis Feild of London, Merchant Taylor.

IV. JOHN, the youngest son of Richard Aldworthe of Tilehurst (will 1543). He was a burgess of Reading from 1555-59, when his name drops out of the list, but he and his wife were both living in 1594, as they are mentioned in the will of his brother Richard Aldworth, the Mayor. It is from this John that the Braybrooke Aldworths must have sprung. We know that they were descended from a John Aldworth, from the memorial in Wargrave Church erected by Richard Aldworth of Hinton Pipard (who died 1638-9) to the memory of

* "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," New Series, Vol. IV., p. 173.

† Quotation in proof: "To Mistris Aldworth, widow, wife of my cousin Richard A. of London, deceased, £5 for mourning, and to every of her daughters £5."

Richard Aldworth his father (died 1623), and to John and Alice, "antecessores suos," which must in this case mean grandparents. The published pedigree mentioned above starts boldly with "John Aldworth of West Hagbourne, Lord of the Manor of Garford in 1546, of Wantage in 1597, and latterly of Reading, Merchant"; and not content with this long life and list of honours, the author of the pedigree marries him three times to other men's wives. I have been at some trouble to prove the incorrectness of this statement, viz.:—

(1) There was a John Aldworth of West Hagbourne married to an Alice. He was a well-to-do yeoman and died in 1545. He had no son of the name of Richard.

(2) In 38 Henry VIII., i.e., in 1545 or 1546, RICHARD Aldworth purchased the Manor of Garford from the King for £251 8s. 4d. It had formerly belonged to Abingdon Monastery. He left at his death in 1557 a son John, who had a son Richard, but no connection with Reading.

(3) There were a great number of persons named John Aldworth alive in Wantage in 1597, but whether one of them was Lord of the Manor I do not know, though one branch of the family is sometimes honoured with the prefix "Mr." in the registers.

It is obvious then, that our genealogist has selected three John Aldworths and amalgamated them, in order to give a good start to his pedigree. All we can say for certain is that John Aldworth was a burgess of Reading from 1555 to 1559; that he was married before 1557, for in that year he pays pew-rent "iiij d. for his wyfe's sete"; that he and his wife were living in 1594, and that he may have lived till 1602, when a person of his name appears in the Churchwardens' Accounts of St. Mary's, Reading, in a list which is entitled "Three and Thertithe of the chefestes and auncientest men in the parish." If this John Aldworth is not the ancestor of the Braybrookes, I cannot see how we can explain the various allusions to kin and cousinship in the will of Richard Aldworth, who founded the Bluecoat School in 1646.

I cannot find any date for the death or will of this John Aldworth. We know from his monument that his wife was named Alice, and that his son was the Richard Aldworth described below, who in his will gives us the names of his sisters. The children born to John and Alice Aldworth therefore were:—

I. RICHARD, baptized at St. Mary's, Reading, 12 January 1557 ("Visitation of Berks, 1665," says died 1623, aged 66).

II. ELLEN, ? baptized 26 January 1561; married .... Rippen.

III. ALICE, married John Wiseman; a widow in 1623.

IV. JOAN, ? baptized 3 April 1553; married .... Barber.

V. MARGARET, married .... Head; a widow in 1623.

RICHARD, the only son, is styled in the published pedigree as of St. Mary Magdalen, Milk Street, an obvious confusion with his kinsman Richard of Bluecoat School fame. In his will (dated 14 April 1623) he calls himself "of London, citizen and Grocer." He mentions his house in St. Mary, Aldermanbury, his house at Stanlake, his dwelling in Reading, the moiety of his parsonage of Wargrave, his manor of Hinton Pipard, and his lands in Hinton Pipard, Stanlake, Twiford, Ruscombe, Sonning, and Hurst. He mentions also some barns called Mombury Barnes, which he purchased of Sir Henry Nevill, the elder, and Sir Henry Nevill, the younger, knights—interesting because the purchaser's descendants were to assume the name and represent the family of the vendors. He married firstly, Anne, daughter of Richard May of London, by whom he had (with two daughters, Anne and Alice) an only son,

RICHARD, his heir.

He married secondly, Margaret, daughter of Thomas Deane, clothier, of Reading, by whom he had :—

I. THOMAS,
II. WILLIAM, } died before 1623, s.p., as is obvious from their father's will.

III. MARGARET, who married 4 September 1623 at St. James's, Clerkenwell, George (afterwards Sir George) Wilmot of Letcombe and Charlton near Wantage, and had issue.

Richard Aldworth died 13 May 1623, and was buried at St. Mary's, Aldermanbury. He was succeeded by his eldest son,

RICHARD, described in the "Visitation of Berks" as of Wargrave. He married 1614 Amy, daughter of Thomas Parsons of Great Milton (who survived him and died in 1672). He died in 1639 and was buried at Ruscombe. His children were :—

I. RICHARD, born in Reading 1614, his heir.

II. THOMAS.

III. ROBERT, who died at Milford on his passage to Ireland in 1652. His goods were administered by his mother.

IV. HENRY, an India merchant. His will was proved 12 August 1664.

V. ANNE, died unmarried at Chievely 14 March 1644.

(All the above were born before 1623.)

VI. JOHN.

VII. GEORGE,
VIII. WILLIAM, } mentioned in will of their brother Henry 1664.

RICHARD, the eldest son, is stated in the published pedigree to have founded the Bluecoat School, whereas he is mentioned in the will of the real founder as "my cousin, Richard A. of Wargrave, gent.—Mistris Amie A., mother of the said Richard—Five of the bretheren of the said Richard, videlicet, Robert, Henry," etc., as above. He is styled in the Visitation as of Ruscombe. In 1646 he was fined £200 for commanding a troop of horse in the King's service, and describes himself as seised of the Manor of Hinton Pipard, called Stanlakes Farm, which he values at £160 yearly, and pleads poverty. To no purpose, however, for on 4 June 1650 the fine was paid. He was afterwards M.P. for Reading and Auditor of the Exchequer, and died 5 October 1680. He married Anne, daughter of William Gwyn of New Windsor, and had issue :—

I. RICHARD, his heir.

II. WILLIAM of Frogmore. By his wife Anne, who died 1695, he had issue (will proved 23 December 1700) :—

1. CHARLES of Frogmore ; M.P. for Windsor 1710 ; killed in a duel with Colonel Chudleigh, the outcome of a Jacobite dispute, 21 August 1714.
2. SUSAN.
3. ELIZABETH.

III. CHARLES, Vice-President of Magdalen College, Oxford ; expelled by James II., but afterwards reinstated ; died unmarried 15 April 1720 (vide Bloxam's "Register of Magdalen").

IV. JOHN, B.A. of All Souls 1672 ; Rector of Lockinge, near Wantage, 1684 until his death (unmarried) in 1729. He left a curious account book, still extant. It was his custom to have his wine brought up the Thames to Goring, and then carted to Lockinge, thus apparently avoiding duty.

V. HENRY, buried in Ruscombe.

VI. ROBERT.

VII. ANNE, married 14 May 1675 Thomas May.

VIII. AMY.

IX. SUSANNA, married 3 June 1679 Robert Hester of Shiplake ; died 1731.

X. MARGARET, married Thomas Parsons of St. Anne's, Westminster.

XI. ELIZABETH.

XII. DOROTHY.

RICHARD, the eldest son, was born at Lambeth ; B.A. St. John's College, Oxon, 1665 ; M.A. 1668 ; M.P. for Dublin University 1695-99 ; King's Remembrancer in Ireland. He married Mary, daughter of William Crofton, M.P., and had issue :—

I. JOHN of Stanlake, born 1680 ; matriculated at Christ Church, Oxford, 1696 ; married Mary, daughter of James Tyrrel of Shotover, who died 1760, aged 90. He died s.p. 1710, and was buried at Ruscombe.

II. RICHARD, heir to his father.

III. ANNE, married Edward Standen of Arbourfield.

IV. JANE, married Gilbert Jackson.

V. MARY, married 1713 James Hayes.

VI. ROSA.

VII. ARABELLA.

RICHARD, the second son and heir, born 1685 ; matriculated at Wadham 1701 ; verderer of Windsor Forest. He married 1714 Catharine, daughter of Richard Neville of Billingbere, and on his death in 1738 was succeeded by his only son,

RICHARD, born 1717, who on the death of his uncle, Henry Neville of Billingbere, became the representative of that family, and assumed the name of Neville-Aldworth, and later of Aldworth-Neville. He was an M.P. from 1747-74 ; Under-Secretary of State and Minister at Paris. He married 1748 Magdalen, daughter of Francis Calandrini. She died 1750. On his own death in 1793 he was succeeded by his only son,

RICHARD ALDWORTH-NEVILLE, born 1750 ; M.P. for Reading. In 1798 he assumed the name of GRIFFIN only, on succeeding, under the special remainder, to the title of his third-cousin, John Griffin-Whitwell, Lord Howard de Walden and Baron Braybrooke. He married Catherine, daughter of George Granville, and sister of the Marquis of Buckingham. He died 1825 ; the grandfather of the present peer.

PEDIGREES OF COPE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

DEAR SIR,

The "Salford Priors" Pedigree on page 242 of "Mis. Gen. et Her.," Vol. IV., Third Series, is very defective except in the Osbaston line, so is also the "Birmingham" Pedigree. I enclose these two Pedigrees complete in the hope they may be of some use. The Pedigrees of Cope of Bramshill, etc., with the exception of the exact dates being omitted, which are easily obtainable, contain otherwise only one or two unimportant errors.

Yours obediently,

ANTHONY WARTON, 1581—1661.

I shall be obliged by any clue to his ancestors in Lancashire, where he was born at Walton in 1581; educated at Lincoln College, Oxford, 1596; ordained by the Bishop of London 1607; Curate of Hamsey, Sussex, and in 1626 to 1661 of Breamore, Hants. His will, in P.C.C. 1661, gives no clue to his wife or habitation before the date 1626. His grandson Anthony (1650—1715) of Godalming, etc., was a direct ancestor of Commander Joseph Warton, R.N., 1780—1863, whose will and burial I fail to find.

MS. at Lincoln College gives Anthony Wharton 1596, born 1583; from Lancs.

MS. at Winchester—Anthony Warton, licensed to serve the curacy of Breamore, 1626.

MS. at Doctors' Commons, 1607—Anthony Warton, B.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford, ordained 1607, to be Curate of Hamsey, Sussex; born at Walton, co. Lancaster, 1581.

The registers begin 1586, but give an Anthony, son of Thomas Wharton, baptized 1623. There are no clues at Hamsey or Lewes.

Anthony's sermons were printed in London 1657. A. C. H.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. V., Part 54. July 1902. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part gives more particulars of the "Drainage of the Great Level" two hundred years ago, the Commissioners asking for power to tax the country for new works, "to cut off corners and to make crooked rivers straight." Those acquainted with Ely and its neighbourhood at present can appreciate the labour undertaken then, and at a cost of only £1200, to which the country contributed. To shew the schemes undertaken, the River Ouse passed in 1618 to Littleport in a crooked course of ten miles long by water, whereas by land it is only three miles. About £1000 was spent on it, but it was not approved of by the better sort of people, and they found means to stay it. It is rather humoursome to find how civic magnates in 1560, and later, very much approached those of the twentieth century by lavish expenditure on their dinners. At one meal for twelve Commissioners there were drank seven quarts of wine, and for seventeen Commissioners there were five quarts of claret and two quarts of sack, besides sugar in large quantities, so that it was calculated that £100,000 a year was spent on sugar at christenings, at a cost of about £5 each. In 1621 this great waste of money was restricted by Proclamation of the State.

There is given in another Paper an account of the marriages during the Commonwealth, written on loose leaves, now much worn and defaced. The service was before a Justice, and the marriage had to be proclaimed on three several Lord's days; and a short Paper is given of Boston Fair so early as 1282, lasting a month, the citizens resorting to it in great numbers, and all business elsewhere ceasing.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XII., Parts 6, 7, and 8, June to August 1902. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE June Part has some interesting plates, among them being the Plates of New College, Oxford, 1702, also those of Sir Horace Mann, Bart., and Lord Walpole.

The July Part for introductory plate has a large one of Mr. Bruce Bannerman's, besides two smaller ones, and other coats are given, all designed by Mr. Graham Johnston, who has the great advantage of being the Herald Painter to the Lyon Office, the arms of Sir James Balfour Paul being given; the plate of Mr. Nevile Reid is also shewn, as well as that of Robert Harley of Bramton Castle, Esq., Speaker and Chancellor of the Exchequer and Lord High Treasurer in Queen Anne's time, and that of his brother, Edward Harley, Esq., both with graceful mantling; and the plate of their father-in-law, Thomas Foley, of Great Witley Court, is also shewn. This is altogether a good Number.

The August Part is chiefly concerned with the President's speech at the Dinner and Annual Meeting, an ample report of which nominally occupies the major part of the Number. Mr. Jewers has an account of the Borlase family, giving three different coats, and Mr. R. Maclay Bull of Brooklyn also has his plate shewn. The plates for identification are now 512.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. No. 1, Vol. X. July 1902. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS is an interesting Part, and besides giving the John Brown letters, which are those of a religious fanatic, has a good account of the Battle of Point Pleasant in November 1774 with various tribes of Indians, who heavily outnumbered the troops, under General Lewis, and soon shot three of his best officers while leading on their men, the fighting continuing all day. So eager were the Indians for scalps that three were shot over Captain John Frogge's body while endeavouring to scalp him. Lord Dunmore came with reinforcements and finally effected a treaty with the Indians. The genealogy in the Part is well sustained.

Monumental Inscriptions

IN THE

Church of St. Giles-in-the-Fields.*

The present fabric of St. Giles' Church was erected in 1733, from the design of Henry Flitcroft, on the site of a church began in 1624 and finished in 1628. This replaced a much older building.

In giving the Inscriptions in this Church we are fortunate in having two separate records of monuments which have now disappeared, for it will be seen that only fragmentary portions of two monuments that were in the Church erected in 1624 remain, and a tablet of the Bertie benefaction, of which parts are gone. These records, which shew what a number of interesting monuments have perished, are, first, a collection of Church Notes, forming Lansdowne MS. 878, in the British Museum. The copies of inscriptions in this MS. (the title-page of which bears the name of William Faldoe) bear evidence of having been carefully made, and the arms are for the most part nicely tricked and coloured, although some towards the end are left unfinished, and in the margin a short note is given setting forth the character and position of many of the monuments. This MS. is undated, but appears to have been written about 1675 from the dates of the inscriptions. Our second source of information is Hatton's "A New View of London." This work corrects what Stowe gives in some points; but on being compared with the MS. and what remains of the actual inscriptions, will be found to vary in many small points, chiefly in the spelling of words and in extending abbreviations. The British Museum copy belonged to B. Grenville, having his name in it, and many pen and ink alterations and notes.

At the West end of the North Aisle an oval marble tablet bears the following:—Deo Votiva | The Honor^{ble} ROBERT | BERTIE of this Parish, one of | the Son^{s} of the Right Hon^{ble} | ROBERT, EARLE OF LINDSEY, Lord | Great Chamberlaine of Englan^{d} | and Generall of all y^{e} forces of KING | CHARLES the First, who was Slayne in | the Battalle att Edge Hill | hath given | into y^{e} hands of y^{e} Churchwardens, Fifty | pounds, that soe y^{e} Interest thereof may bee | distributed by them from time to time and | for ever, to the poore in bread | (Viz^{t}) | Twelve peny worth, on every Sunday in y^{e} | Yeare, & on every New Years day, Five | shillings (if Sunday) otherwise, Four | shillings; & on y^{e} last Sunday of Aug^{t} | in ye same yeare, Five shillings, | Begun the First day of | January 1677. | Pauperibusqz | Tabula.

[In the "New View" this is given with many variations of spelling, etc., but it adds the arms, now gone, namely: Three battering rams, impaling a bear rampant. No colours.]

Beneath the first window from the West end of this Aisle is a plain marble tablet, inscribed with the following, and on a ledge beneath it is the recumbent effigy in marble of a lady. The style of the figure might be of a much later date, the form is so well moulded, and shrouded in a robe, the lines of which flow gracefully over the body:—In Memory of the Right Hon^{ble} LADY FRANCES KNIVETON, (wife of

S^r GILBERT KNIVETON | of Bradley, in the County of Derby, Baronet,) lyeth buried in the Chancel of this Church. | She was one of the 5 Daughters and Coheirs of the R^t Hon^ble S^r ROBERT DUDLEY, K^t, Duke of the | Empire ; by the LADY ALICE his Wife & Duchess, Which ROBERT was Son of the R^t Hon^ble | ROBERT DUDLEY, Late EARLE OF LEICESTER, & his Duchess was Daughter of S^r THO. LEIGH | & Aunt to the R^t Hon^ble THO^s late LORD LEIGH of Stoneleigh in the County of Warwick, | And the said Honour and Title of DUCHESS DUDLEY was by Letters Patents of his late Majesty | of glorious Memory, KING CHARLES y^e 1^st allowed ; & since graciously confirmed to her by his | now Majesty KING CHARLES y^e 2^d and she lived and died worthy of that Honour | Since the rebuilding of this Church, this monument was resett up by the | Hon^ble CHARLES LEIGH of Leighton in Bedfordshire ; 1738.

[The above is the monument as it now appears, with a careful copy of the inscription, which will be found to vary in minor points from that printed in "A New View of London," which, however, supplies the following inscription, now gone, with the marble on which it was cut:—

"The Right Honourable Lady FRANCES KNIVETON, Wife of Sir GILBERT KNIVETON of Bradley in the County of Derby, Baronet, lyeth buried in the Chancel of this Church. She was one of the Daughters and Coheirs of the Right Honourable Sir ROBERT DUDLEY, Knight, Duke of the Empire, by the Lady ALICE his Wife and Duchess. Which ROBERT was son of the Right Honourable ROBERT DUDLEY, late Earl of Leicester, and his Duchess was Daughter of Sir THO. LEIGH and Aunt to the Right Honourable THO., late LORD LEIGH of Stoneley in the County of Warwick. And the said Honour and Title of DUCHESS DUDLEY was by Letters Patents of his l^a Majesty of Glorious Memory KING CHARLES the 1^st allowed and since graciously confirmed to her by his now Majesty KING CHARLES the 2^nd ; and she lived and died worthy of that Honour.

"The Right Honourable Lady ANNE HOLBOURNE, sister of the said LADY FRANCES, another Daughter of the said Duke and Duchess, did will this Monument, which she has provided in her life time, to be erected to the Memory of her dear Sister near to whom herself (who died August 1663) lyes also interred ; and it is placed here for want of convenient room in the Chancel."

The "New View" also gives the following description of the monument and the arms then on it :—

"On the South Side of the Church and at the West End is an Extraordinary Spacious Monument mostly marble, adorned with Cartouches, Cornish, Pediment, Martling, Festoons ; on the Pediment is a Death's Head, having a Laurel Chaplet, and under, the word 'Resurgamus' between two Boys supporting a large mantling, supposed to let down and cover the whole Monument ; as also Effigies lying at full length, finely carved.

"Here are these arms: Ruby, a Chevron Verry, on a Canton Pearl a Sinister hand of the first impaled with Topaz, a Lion rampant Diamond which last is also impaled with Pearl on a Fess diamond, 3 Cresents Topaz in Chief 2 Birds rising Diamond."

The above method of blazon having entirely fallen into disuse as purposeless and confusing, it may be as well to give the modern form. First Shield : Gules, a chevron vaire (the badge of a Baronet in chief), KNIVETON ; impaling Or, a lion rampant double-queued vert, DUDLEY. This well-known coat is incorrectly given in the "New View," but correctly given in Lansdowne MS. 878. Second Shield : Argent, on a fess sable three crescents or, in chief two birds rising of the second, HOLBORN ; impaling DUDLEY, as before. Also two Shields of KNIVETON impaling DUDLEY, both quarterly ; and DUDLEY with quarters and impaling BLAKE (see post).

A "Life of Sir Robert Dudley, with notes on the Lives of Alice, Duchess Dudley, and her daughters," states that the present figure in St. Giles' Church was originally part of a very magnificent monument, the figure being under a carved canopy, supported by black marble pillars, which monument is generally supposed to have been erected by Alice, Duchess Dudley, as it closely resembles the monument she erected for herself in Stoneleigh Church; but this supposition is effectually disposed of by the statement regarding the monument in the will of Dame Anne Holborne, of which the following is an abstract :—

Anne Holborne makes her will in perfect health and memory. Undated. To be buried in the chancel of St. Giles' Church in the fields, as near the body of her sister Lady Frances Kniveton as can be. To the poor of that parish £50 to be distributed at her burial. For the repair and re-edifying of the church adjoyning to the Temple House in Bulsall lane £500, and if that is not sufficient so much more as will build it up in fair and decent manner; also to that church or chapel £100 a year for ever, out of lands in Bulsall to maintain a preaching minister to the end of the world. Out of lands in Long Itchington £50 a year to be settled upon the church to augment its small income. To the poor of the Parishes of Bulsall and Long Itchington, co. Warwick, £100, to be distributed about the time of her funeral. £200 for a ring and Jewell for her mother the "Lady Duchess Dudley." Cousin Skrimsher, the Lord Viscount Bronker's sister, "my husband's picture set with diamonds," and to her daughter Frances Skrimsher £100 if she live to be twenty years of age. £50 for a ring for cousin Elizabeth Trasie. Cousin Charles Leigh £100 or a ring of that price. To true and faithful friends Thomas Percival, Esq., £100, and his wife M^rs^ Katherine Percival £500; to their daughter "my goddaughter" £500. Cousin Elizabeth Stanley £20. Worthy friend and kinsman Lord Viscount Bronkre £1500 or £100 a year out of lands in Itchington for his care of her and her affairs, and had intended him to be her executor, but for many reasons thinks it not convenient, and therefore ordains her worthy brother Sir Richard Leveson, Knight of the Bath, and dear sister Lady Katherine Leveson his wife to be executors, and the said Lady Katherine Leveson to be residuary legatee, and a ring of £100 to said brother Leveson, and they to see "my deare sister the Lady Frances Leveson's tomb set up in S^t^ Gyles church as I have agreed with one M^r^ Marshall, a stone cutter in Shoe lane, and is to pay him £120 for it, and to be set up under the South window near which her said sister Lady Frances Kniveton is buried." "I desire my owne figure to be added to hers in a winding sheete as my deare sisters is." Goddaughter Anna Howin £20 when she is twenty, and, being much beholden to her parents, gives a ring of £20 to cousin Howin and one of £10 to his wife. "My cozen Andoreus his daughter." Bequests to servants. If brother and sister Leveson are not near at her death and the Lord Viscount Brounker is, that he will act as Executor.

Proved 27 Aug. 1663 by William Viscount Brouncker as the will of Lady Anna Holborne, late of the parish of St. Paul, Covent Garden, Sir Richard Leveson, K.B., being deceased, and Dame Katherine Leveson, his relict and sister of the deceased, renouncing. (P.C.C., 108, Juxon.)

The following is an exact copy of the inscription as given in Lansdowne MS. 878 :—

The Stirling Family.*

A SCOTCH PHYSICIAN'S NOTEBOOK OF THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY.

There has lately come into my possession "A Register or A Generall Almanack for Every Yeare," printed at London "by William Wilson for the Company of Stationers, 1646," which in itself is a curiosity, with its chapters on Weather, Temperaments, the Planets, Weights and Measures, the Fairs, fixed and moveable, of England and Wales, the Road Highways over England and Wales, and much more information as various as remarkable. Its chief interest, however, lies not only in the fact that it was a notebook of a Scotch physician, apparently a Doctor Stirling, and contains his prescriptions (which are of a weird character, as were the medicines with which unfortunate patients were mercilessly dosed in those days), his patients' names, and the names of some doctors whose special prescriptions he has copied, but also in that there is scattered through its pages the names and obituaries of several persons, probably his patients, mixed with sundry other matters relating to his personal affairs.

It is the genealogical items, however, that are alone suited for the pages of this Magazine, and these I have abstracted and give as below.

The writing is clear and neat on the whole, but it is so small in places that it required a magnifying glass to decipher. Some of it has faded and is partly illegible, but it is all methodical and without signs of haste. It is amazing the amount of matter that is squeezed into the small pages.

Who Dr. Stirling was, or where he practised (if he were a Stirling) I cannot say, but I suspect he was an ancestor of the present Sir John Stirling-Maxwell, Bart., and some of your readers may be able to throw some light on his identification.

The following are the entries recording births and deaths, with an occasional marriage, and some entries relating to property:—

Reviews.

Some Feudal Coats of Arms. By J. FOSTER, Hon. M.A. Oxon. London and Oxford: James Parker and Co.

THIS is a new book, on a fresh departure, by Mr. Foster, and is well worthy of a place in every gentleman's library. It is a volume complete in itself, and is nicely got up and issued by Messrs. Parker. With other works of Mr. Foster's, half a dozen would be begun in parts, where there was no chance of them being finished for years to come. such as his "Familiæ Minorum Gentium," which has now been issued by the Harleian Society in four volumes, and "Musgrave's Obituary," making six volumes—both works quite out of the reach of private enterprise, and only possible where such a wealthy society such as the Harleian undertakes the printing and issuing for its members. Similarly placed were the Lincolnshire Pedigrees, began by Mr. Foster and relinquished. It has this year been undertaken by the Harleian Society, under the editorship of Canon Maddison, who is adding several pedigrees of his own compilation and that of friends to it; and as it will make three or four volumes, that again was an error of judgment to think of issuing it in sheets with other works, as years would be exhausted before the work was completed.

This present work is rare, in giving so many page illustrations of knights from 1300 upwards. On every other page is a plate given either of arms or figures in full armour, about 130 in all out of a volume of about 300 pp. The smaller coats seem all to be carefully drawn, each with a name attached, and colours given. The facsimiles of the Boroughbridge Roll of 1322 and a tracing from the Camden Roll temp. Edward I. are both given as a double plate on a toned ground, such as we often adopt in this publication. Altogether the work is worthy of its painstaking compiler and publisher, and will prove a boon to many bookplate collectors in corroborating unknown coats.

An Exact List of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in 1734. London: Elliot Stock, Paternoster Row, E.C.

THIS is a little book, nicely got up and bound, of the Members of the House of Lords in 1734. It has a Preface by Mr. A. C. Fox-Davies, who gives some interesting summaries of the number of Archbishops, Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, Viscounts, and Bishops. Each page is a photographed facsimile of a copy found bound up with Goldsmith's Almanack for 1735, which is now in the British Museum. We note that Lord Palmerston sat for Boffiney, Cornwall, and Sir Rowland Hill for Litchfield, and also that several Lords lived in Soho. Altogether it is worthy the acceptance or patronage of all members of Parliament.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XII., Parts 9, 10, and 11, September to November 1902. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE above Parts tend to keep up the Journal to its usual level, and the September one gives some examples of an American draughtsman, which as his narrator, Mr. Truesdell, says, shew some originality in form and shape; the one of Frank Wood's is a picture in itself, being ably minimized from the Guttenberg plate placed on a pile of books, the open leaf of the one at top shewing his arms. Another American artist, Mr. Arthur P. Spear, has three plates given, also shewing great care and variety of style, Mr. Lothrop's especially. The Part also contains a sample of a coat in three colours at one impression, the registering of which is perfect. The November Part gives the arms of Lord Craven and also two of the Jago family of Cornwall, and of the Borlase family. The arms for identification now amount to 521.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. No. 2, Vol. X. October 1902. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Part has the article, "The Germans of the Valley," concluded. It has been very interesting, shewing as it has done the frugal manner and style of living in the early part of 1700. The Brown papers are also continued, giving an account of events after the scrimmage at Harper's Ferry. In style John Brown and the Boer Kruger are much alike, each with a Bible in one hand and a death-warrant in the other. The Part also contains an account of Christ Church, Lancaster, co. Virginia, with two illustrations.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. V., Part 55. October 1902. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part contains the usual quantity of local matter, including the Drainage question of 1618, and a painstaking article on the liberty of Peterborough, giving an account of the various deeds passed from time to time. Among other interesting matters given is an advertisement for "Letting the Poor," whereby persons who wished to treat for the same were desired to apply to the Churchwarden or Overseer. "None but married persons need apply." We presume their labour was utilized for any purpose the applicants required it for.

The best of Mothers, and the best of Wives;
And there through sorrow's desolating storm
A gentle voice is heard—a voice without a form. [End first column.]

And guide their steps along the narrow way:
So may we meet—Renew'd, Redeem'd, forgiven,

The rest of this monument, probably originally within the Church, stood until about the year 1892 at the East end of the Church outside the Vestry wall. The following is a description of the Belasyse monument taken, with the illustration, from the "Gentleman's Magazine," 3 August 1817:—

"Passing in at the Monmouth-street gate of St. Giles's Church a few Sabbaths ago, some I saw were viewing Pendril's tomb, and others the Belasyse monument at the East end of this handsome Church; but neither the one or the other, I found, could easily be decyphered. Time is making rapid progress in the destruction of both these records of memorable events and noble families, and, unless you think them worth a place in your ever-living collection, it is feared their inscriptions may be lost for ever.

"I have endeavoured to decypher the Belasyse monument, and inclose it you. It was, however, the pleasant amusement of three Sabbath mornings' visits; I hope the record will be of some amusement to all; and if it meets the eye of any of the family there so highly spoken of, I hope they will take means to restore this not very antient monument to its original beauty."

of the Right Honourable
JOHN, LORD BELASYSE, Baron
of Warlaby.
He departed this Life the 3rd of June 1710 in the 9th
year of his age.

The following is the inscription as it is given in Hatton's "New View of London":†—

This monument‡ was erected Anno 1670,[1] in memory of the Honourable JOHN, LORD BELASYSE, BARON WORLABY, second son of THOMAS, LORD VISCOUNT FAUCONBERG, his Wives and children.[2] Who for his Loyalty, Prudence, and Courage, was promoted to several commands of great Trust by Their Majesties KING CHARLES the 1st and 2d Viz. Having raised six Regiments of Horse and Foot in the late Civil Wars, he commanded a Tertia in His Majesties Armies at the Battels of Edghill, Newbury and Naseby,[3] the sieges of Redding and Bristol; afterward being made Governour of York and Commander in Chief of all His Majesty's Forces

* This stone was originally within the Church under the communion table, but was here placed when the corpse (which was enclosed in a leaden coffin) was removed with some others to a vault under the North gate. ("Gentleman's Magazine.")

† The following corrections are made in pen and ink:—[1] In the Year 1736. [2] It now is E. end of ch. outside. [3] Naseby spelt Knavesby on the mont. [4] Nottingham. [5] "He" added. [6] "And, etc." more on the monument. [7] In co. Herts. [8] "And Frances, deceased;" and the sentence from "Bath" to "Mary" struck out. [9] This paragraph is struck out and this added: "d 11 Aug. 1662." This paragraph is also struck out.

‡ This can hardly be the same monument; if it is, it must have been considerably altered. The date, 1670, nineteen years before the death of Lord Bellasyse (p. 183, line 3), exactly corresponds with the date of the erection of the monument in Worlaby Church (vide infra, p. 186).

Reviews.

The Carvings and Inscriptions on the Kirkyard Monuments of the Scottish Lowlands, particularly of Perth, Fife, Angus, Mearns, and Lothian. By C. CHRISTISON, M.D. Edinburgh: Neill and Co. 1902. (Only 100 printed.)

THIS is a very neat, small quarto work, amply illustrated throughout with nearly 200 engravings, and well printed. The monuments given, as at Kilmadock, Perthshire, are excellently copied, which shews how carefully they had been cleaned out before photographs of them were taken, and proving beyond a doubt that all were carved by one statuary, both from the similarity of the lettering as well as the words used, such as "Memento Mori," etc. Some stones shew a spade only upon the slab of stone, while others have a plough-share, and some give the date or initials only; on one is a pair of scales, on another a bugle or a funnel—about 1618 to 1741. Taking Angus for example, there are slabs filled with writing in a smaller character entirely than those of 1637, and initials and tools of all kinds, as if they had been masons' marks; figures are sometimes in relief, flowers also, one stone having four clothed figures in buttoned coats, and one with a coronet on his head, each having separate inscriptions, "I do ring," "I shall ring," "I did ring," and "I once rang," with excellently deciphered letters and the date, 1743. Adam and Eve are shewn on other stones, Moses striking the rock, and Aaron with breastplate and his rod, depicted as a round-headed knotty stick; this was built into a cottage years after, and five other stones from Perth were also ready, but the builder, going from home for a few days, found on his return that the blacksmith had carried them off from the builder's cottage and had broken them up to make a hearth for his smithy! The writing on the monuments at Angus and Mearns, again, shews a great similitude, proving that one class of masons had done them all. A large stone at Laurencekirk, Mearns, shews a coat with handsome mantling, and armoured shoulder-piece with helmet on top, and on a slab inside initials of a worthy cobbler and his tools, all depicted in relief underneath. In Fife are shewn Freemasons' signs, saws, initials, ships, etc., and on several is the hour-glass with the age given of the deceased as 80 and the date 1626. In West Lothian also are shewn the hour-glass, hammers, compasses, saws, Death's head and cross-bones, rakes and spades, with "Memento Mori" repeated as in Kilmadock and Angus. Lanark, Peebles, and Dumfries chiefly depict the figures of Adam and Eve in Paradise, with trees and serpents. The Perth figures are mostly given clothed as man and wife, and some shew only the bust of the man. Melrose has several busts of men, and on one slab is an excellently drawn head of a musician, for on the stone, enclosed in a shield, are the violin and bow. At Rosneath is shewn a cobbler's monument, with the motto, "This is for Crispin," and a high boot and shoe with a round-headed knife.

We have thus gone over the various styles given, and our wonder is that so many appear perfect, although 250 years old. The neighbourhood, too, was not subject to a Cromwell's inroads; and even the mischief-makers further south, who cannot allow the nose on a beautiful alabaster monument to remain, found that solid stone triumphantly withstood their dastard tricks. There were not even brass inscriptions or figures of knights to steal.

The compiler, too, has been fortunate in having so many helpers to photograph the monuments; but even in these cases, we know well what a vast amount of cleaning the filth of centuries entails, and the assistance he has had is proved by the scrupulous clearness of all the inscriptions, even where the writing is so small.

The work shews in every way painstaking carefulness, great judgment in the classification of the monuments, and an earnest desire to shew by these records the history and condition of Scotland two centuries ago. What apparently is plain is the respect shewn by the present generation to such monuments, and the care taken by the clergy to preserve all they can. What a different state of things exists in the majority of the churches in England, where to form a passage between the pews the best and the oldest of the stone monuments are made a pavement of: some with small brasses still intact on them, others with the inscriptions and arms only, with all the mantling depicted, and perhaps after a search you find 1600 often inscribed on them.

The value of this work would have been greatly enhanced by a good index.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. No. 3, Vol. X. January 1903. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS is an ample Part giving in one article the names of the owners of slaves in Westmoreland in 1782, and the Houses of Burgesses in 1683-4. There are also two plates, one shewing the birthplace of Mary Washington, and the other giving facsimile letters of Sir George Yeardley, Governor of Virginia in 1619, with a good account of him from the Ferrar Papers. "Pioneer days in Alleghany County" shews the hard times the settlers had with the Indians early in 1700, who after being well received would murder the whole of the men, one now and then perhaps escaping, and rushing over the Alleghany mountains would warn the settlements and the nearest fort. So the Indians went from point to point until some spirited Captain went in pursuit, and perhaps having lost half his men in an ambush he came up with a body of them, and then would come across the scalps of the former settlers. Among these was a woman called "Mad Anne," a heroine named Anne Dennis from Liverpool, England, in 1742, she being an immigrant at 13, marrying at 23, and a widow at 32. By her husband she had a son, who his mother left in charge of a neighbour while she sought to avenge her husband's death. Nothing daunted she dressed herself with petticoats and a man's coat over them, and with a rifle, a tomahawk, and a butcher's knife she became a courier. No mountain was too steep for her and her steed, no summer too hot, no enemy too cunning. She spent a year in a hut built by herself, and immortalized herself by a long ride from one fort to another, returning with powder for the besieged garrison. For this valiant act she was given a beautiful and spirited horse which she called "Liverpool." From the ridge which bears the name of "Mad Anne's Ridge" she started for ammunition and was overtaken in a snow-storm and fell asleep, but the horse returning a party was at once despatched in search of her, and finally she was rescued from a hole in the snow, caused by her warm breath. At another time she aroused the garrison at Fort Young by her shouts, and came in bloodstained and haggard, but bearing two Indian scalps as her trophies. She married again a valiant frontiersman and lived up to 1825, her pulseless corpse being found in a rude shanty built by herself on the banks of the Ohio River. Her virtues still echo through the mountain passes where her footsteps are a century old. The above and other interesting papers fill a very good Part.

The Smith Family, being a popular account of most branches of the name from 1300, with numerous pedigrees. By COMPTON READE, M.A. Magdalen College, Oxford, Rector of Kenchester, and Vicar of Bridge Sollars, Author of "A Record of the Redes," etc. London: Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row, E.C.

THIS is a portly volume of 300 pp., and as the author says, "it professes to review the great Fabrician family, whether crisped as Smith, 'smoothed into Smyth,' or 'smidged into Smijth.'" He therefore is not content to give merely a pedigree, but has endeavoured to add a précis of those who have attained celebrity. He makes a joke of how persons born a Smith wriggle out of the name as if it were too common; and as there is no reason why a butler cannot assume the name of his master, so a Bug will blossom into a Norfolk Howard, or plain John Smith become metamorphosed into a De Montmorency, as the Carringtons, Pauncefotes, etc. As for antiquity, the Smiths, like the poor, have always been with us, and the author says that Professor Mahaffy found a man known as Smith in the twentieth year of the third Ptolemy, B.C. 227, and he was a brewer! The author also pleasingly narrates how a mansion with an ancient rookery was purchased by a man named Smith, and the rooks, whose tenure of the Elizabethan elms was as ancient as the mansion, met in conclave and decided that it would be beneath their dignity to adorn the demesne of anyone with so plebian a patronymic. When about to emigrate one of their tribe arrived post haste to assure them that the name was Smythe and not Smith! Of course they then remained. The late Mr. Carrington Smith, nursery gardener of Worcester, proved himself a real Carrington, and after that he breathed freely.

The author takes the Heralds' Visitations, beginning with Abingdon, Berks, and going on alphabetically, gives pedigrees in each county down to Yorkshire, and also avails himself of the Harleian Society's "Familiæ Minorum Gentium," and quotes three pedigrees from the work of Smith of Rotherham, Smith of Newark, and Smyth of Colkirk, Norfolk, whose daughter Caroline Smyth of 1678 married Thomas Bendyshe of Gray's Inn, and had a son Ireton B., and from this line possesses a descent from Oliver Cromwell.

Some of the more ambitious Smyths claim a royal descent, such as the Elkington Smyths, who claim descent from Edward I. through Eleanor of Castile, and onward through Sir Robert Drury, Speaker of the House of Commons, whose daughter married Sir Philip Boteler, and from that family into Sir Anthony Chester's, and then finally settled in 1660 into the Smyths family of Elkington Hall.

The whole work is pleasant reading, interspersed as it is with amusing accounts from some of the family histories.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XII., Part 12, for December 1902, and Parts 1 and 2, Vol. XIII., for January and February 1903. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE December Part has three coats of arms of Sir Daniel Fleming, Bart., created by the King at Windsor in 1681. He was a notable man in his day, fond of heraldry; was a great friend of Dugdale the genealogist, who complains of having fallen "into an age wherein matters of antiquity are valued but by few. I often wish myself with you for an hour or two, for I see you both love and understand these things very well." On 11 June 1672 Dugdale informs Daniel that the King's Letters Patent have been issued asking subscriptions toward the new structure "of our College in London commonly called the Heralds' Office." The Paper ends by giving a very good pedigree from Sir Daniel Fleming, born 1633, to Sir Andrew Fleming Hudleston Fleming, 8th Bart. in 1884.—Mr. C. Dexter Allen has an interesting letter on bookplates, and gives one of John Paul Bocock and another of "Willard Lee and his son Jack," a ranchman, in costume, standing beside his horse with lasso and revolver in hand.

The January Part gives the arms of the Speaker, William Court Gully, besides four legal bookplates and two for identification, and the arms with a plate of Mr. E. H. Ebsworth. It also contains a list of Worcestershire Bookplates, and a rough list of legal ones. The Part includes Title of Vol. XII. and Contents, and a General Index.

The February Part gives the arms of the Bristol Law Society, and besides that there are four legal bookplates and three pages of a rough list of them. The Editor's dissertation on bookplates to the members of the Plymouth Institution is noticed, illustrated as it was by a number of slides, and Dr. Peachey's lecture at Abbey Gateway, Reading, before the Berks Archæological Society, is given. There are also shewn the plates for the Gosport and Alvestoke Reference Library and the Limehouse District Public Library. The bookplates for identification number now 536.

Blake Family Records, 1300 to 1600: A Chronological Catalogue, with copious Notes and Genealogies, of many branches of the Family of Blake. By MARTIN J. BLAKE, of Lincoln's Inn. London: Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row, E.C. 1902.

THE Blake Family of Connaught has been blessed with documents proving their right to grants of land from 1315, and in this work we find the appointments under which they received the titles, facsimiles of which are shewn, and from Record No. 1 to No. 173 the deeds of confirmation and mortgage, besides leases. There is an Addendum beginning 1393, after which come the Genealogical Memoirs of various branches of the Blakes of Galway, whose memoirs are given from 1278, to Peter Blake of Corbally, who died in 1851, leaving nine children and twenty-five grandchildren. The work ends with the genealogies of some branches of the Blakes of Galway and Blakes of Canada, who emigrated there in 1832, William Hume Blake becoming Solicitor-General of Upper Canada.

The work is well got up, and makes upwards of 200 pages, and will be esteemed as a most painstaking record of a family well worth resuscitating. We, however, greatly miss an index.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. V., Part 56. January 1903. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part begins with an account of the Wanty family of Thorney from Mr. Peet's "Memorials of de Vantier," an old Huguenot immigrant supposed to have been driven from France in 1685. For five years after not a single baptism at Thorney is recorded. However, they settled in the neighbourhood, and were successful in reclaiming the fens of Lincolnshire and adjacent counties during the century they settled there, many of them marrying with their English neighbours. The names of these strangers abound in every village and hamlet in the district, but the recollection of the French language has long ceased to be heard in the Fens, and their names are almost beyond recognition through anglicization and corrupt pronunciation. However, the Wantiers between 1586 and 1628 were domiciled at Maidstone and Canterbury, their names appearing in the Registers at Canterbury, and by courtesy the crypt of the cathedral was devoted to them and their companions as a place of worship. It is recorded that they tried to establish themselves at Hatfield Chase in Yorkshire, making overtures to the Earl of Bedford to rent land on his Thorney estate, and drain and cultivate it. This account will be welcomed by the Huguenot Society of London, also the three arms given.

Among other articles there is a reference to the Northampton Free Library disposing of the choice works comprised in the books that had belonged to the Northampton Poet, John Clare. Of course if a poet, like the prophet of old, is not esteemed by his own country his friends may disregard him, but when the collection of books given to him is acquired by his friends and presented to his native library as a record of his memory, it seems to us like a breach of trust for any committee to sell them, because the original donors of the library had a prior claim to them before they were sold, if found valuable. It is a precedent which is just as well stopped at the beginning, else it will ramify through every library in the kingdom. The Part is altogether interesting.

The Dightons of Clifford Chambers and their Descendants. By CONWAY DIGHTON. London : Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row, E.C.

THIS is a family history, beginning with Job Dighton, Barrister-at-Law of the Middle Temple, who was settled at Clifford about 1639, and bought the manor and advowson in 1649 from the Raynsfords, who were ruined Royalists, for £4450. He died ten years later and was buried in the night by his brother-in-law Mr. William Harewell.

Richard Dighton was his grandson, and his youngest son was John, who bought an estate at Shirburn in 1754, and died intestate in 1761, leaving a widow and eight children. He was the senior partner of a firm of solicitors styled Dighton and Bonnin. His eldest son, James Lucy, who was a minor at his father death, went to India with his three brothers after the disposal of his father's property. The youngest son, born six months after his father's death, turned out to be a distinguished Indian officer, and became a Lieutenant-General, Hon. East India Company, in 1804. The two surviving sons, David Royd and Richard Henry, who with their father have their portraits given, carried on the Anglo-Indian tradition of their house; David became First Lieutenant in 1824 and was killed in the Burmese War, and Richard Henry, who was a sickly boy, made a great name for himself in India, being in the banking house of William Palmer and Co., and became mixed up in the finances of Hyderabad, and was named as Commissioner of the District, but the appointment was forbidden by Lord Hardinge. He, however, was chiefly concerned in the care of the Nizam's fortune, and finally got away with all the jewels given to him as security, which were afterwards returned on the Nizam paying interest in 1854, the year Richard died in England.

The eldest brother of Henry was Charles Mein Dighton, who was a short time in the army, but left it to enter Holy Orders. He was soon ordained deacon in the Cathedral of Llandaff, and with a full account of his ministration the writer takes leave of his readers.

The work ends with nine Appendices, which embrace the births, deaths, and marriages of the different branches, and gives an interesting account of this worthy family well worth recording. It, however, loses greatly through the absence of an index. The four portraits and coats of arms are a pleasing feature to the book.

Francis Sirr, born 16—; West India and Silk Merchant of St. Clement Danes; he was settled there 1722, "before Walpole was made a knight." (Treasury Papers, vol. ccxlviii., No. 69.) Robert Walpole, and sets forth and complains of the irregularities of which Sirr was the victim, intimating the complaint "is encouraged by some great men." NOTES.

The name De Sers lingers in Brittany. Sers in Celtic signifies Stars. In the South of France the name has been familiar since the thirteenth century (vide "Dictionnaire de la Noblesse," Desbois et Badier).

Many persons named Sers, who left Languedoc apparently at the close of the seventeenth century, were settled in Dublin circa 1699—1713, as it appears from Registers published by The Huguenot Society of London. Vol. xvi., "French Refugees," Heralds' College, mentions Pierre Sers and others in extracts, presumably taken from Registers of Foreign Protestant Churches, London, 1720, 1729, 1741.

A transitional spelling of Sirr from Sers was Seer or Seers. This spelling appears to have been used in Germany, and it is known that Sirr was altered from a German spelling. "Patronymica Britannica" also connects the two spellings.

Peter Sers, son of John, of St. Martin's, London, matriculated at Christ Church 1720-21, and graduated as Patrick Seers (Alumni Oxonienses).

In Prussia there were persons named Sers in the military service, vide "Deutche Biographie" and "Moniteur des Dates," from which it appears that the spelling was also Seers and Sehrs (with or without De or Von), and that General Peter von Seers (spelt also Sehrs in "Deutche Biographie," and with the alternative Sers in "Moniteur des Dates," Tom. iii., Suppl.) left France for the sake of religion, and was probably located at Herford in Westphalia in 1695.

Pass for Samuell Serse for Holland (possibly en route for Prussia) by Marq. de Miremont (Huguenot General in Ireland). (Cal. State Papers, Dom., 1690.)

The will of Peter Sers of Gedney, Lincolnshire (P.C.C.), proved in London 23 March 1812. His sister was included in a grant of arms to Sir George Nayler, York Herald (afterwards Garter), whom she married in 1798.

The arms used in this Lincolnshire family, which is of French origin, accord with the arms for Seers, Prussia, given by Rietstrap. The confirmation to Sirr is differenced—in chief a Harp of Ireland, above it the Imperial Crown, both proper. (Ulster's Office, Dublin.) The arms were thus differenced for a confirmation a century before the actual confirmation. The difference was allowed, but the crest also was differenced in the confirmation.

A large family Bible, containing all entries relating to Sirr family, the old Baptismal Bowl, and many papers and effects were destroyed by fire at Whiteley's, where they were stored. Many baptisms were private and probably not elsewhere recorded.

It is held that the name Sers is essentially Celtic, and this would imply that the family originated in Brittany, and that the branch which immigrated into Prussia did so only after having immigrated into England, where the name Sers was turned into the essentially English spelling Seers.

Sers, Canton de Luz (Hautes-Pyrénées).

MEMORANDA.

Not accounted for in Pedigree :—

Nieces and nephew of Francis Sirr of St. Clement Danes, respectively Anne Sirr, Catherine Sirr, and Roger Sirr.

The following cannot be accounted for :—

Sirr, William, married Celia, dau. of Abraham Marshall, Galway, October 1791. ("Hibernian Mag."—Marriages.)

"In memory of Catherine Ann Sirr, who died April 17th, 1830, aged 25 years." (Stone in churchyard, Denston, Suffolk.)

Thomas Sir of Smithboro', Weaver, Bachelor, and Mary Jane Rogers of Smithboro', Spinster, 9 November 1829. John Sirr of Golanmurphy, Killievan, Cooper, Bachelor, and Mary Moore of Killalina, Clones, Spinster, both of county of Monaghan, 8 June 1831. (Marriage Licences, Clogher Diocese.)

The spelling Surr has not been connected with Sirr or Sers, but the following are noteworthy examples from Ireland :—

Christoper Surr, Sheriff of Galway. Will July 1668; mentions wife Marrian, son ffrancis Surr, and daughter Elizabeth.

William Surr, Wicklow, 1667. (Hist. MSS. Com. Report 10, Part V., 41.)

"The Major I find to be Major Sirr, who is described by M^{r} Whitelaw (the Historian of Dublin) as his 'worthy old friend, intimate with the parties mentioned in the song, and particularly with the Earl of Meath.' " .... "Major Sirr went to Ireland in 1757 with the Duke of Bedford. He was then a Captain in Sebright's, the 83rd regiment. Major Sirr was subsequently appointed town-major of the city of Dublin, and pratique master of the port. He was High Sheriff of the County of Dublin, and Deputy Judge-Advocate-General of Ireland; and Governor of most of the institutions of the Irish metropolis. He was the father of the present well-known Major Sirr of Dublin." ("Popular Songs of Ireland." Crofton Croker: 1839. Re the Kilruddery Hunt.)

Major Joseph Sirr knew Lord Heathfield (the defender of Gibraltar) intimately, and they were very much alike in appearance, so much so, that sometimes one was taken for the other. Heathfield, as General Eliott, was Commander of the Forces in Ireland.

The dates given in their mother's Bible confirm the statements as to age

(a) Of Henry Charles Sirr, in a return to the Lord Lieutenant, dated Dublin Castle, 23 August 1838, wherein he states he is in his 73rd year.

(b) Of William Whiteway Sirr, given in Lieutenants' Certificates, 1795, vol. xix., Record Office, London.

A long correspondence in "The Weekly Irish Times" (9 March to 22 June 1901) followed "Recollections of Major Sirr." Much information was given, popular mendacity refuted, and attention drawn to Sir Robert Peel's reply to Brougham in the House of Commons: "In the whole of the six years during which he had been acquainted with Major Sirr he never knew a milder man, or one less disposed to exert authority unduly." (Hansard, N.S., vol. ix., p. 1309.)

Two autograph letters of Major Sirr are included in the collection of Lord Hardwick's Papers. (B. M.)

Letter of Joseph D'Arcy Sirr from Dublin Castle to Sir William Betham, Ulster King of Arms, re the case of Marquis Clanricarde and the Bishop of Meath, concerning the advowson of Killucan, 1834. (Add. MS. 23,683, B. M.)

Joseph D'Arcy Sirr was elected a Member of The Royal Irish Academy in 1829.

A declaration of French Ministers, refugees in England, London, 30 March 1691, is signed by "Sers, formerly Minister in the Church of Montredon." (Huguenot Society, "Proceedings," vol. iii., p. 337.) It is pointed out in "L'Intermediare des Chercheurs et Curieux," under "Famille de Sirr, Sers, etc." (20 July 1898): "La famille Sers est, en effet, originaire du haut Languedoc, des montagnes du Tarn, où elle a encore des représentants." Also a pastor of Brassac, Loth Sers, is mentioned as the probable ancestor of General Phillip Loth Seers (Sehrs) [the father of General Peter Seers given in "Deutche Biographie"], and several particulars respecting him are enumerated.

There are distinct families with the surname Seer and Seers (of East Anglian and other origin), sometimes erroneously connected with Sirr.

A pilot to her royal soverign came :

He departed this life at the age of 55 | being the last of December Anno D'm'i 1660. | Here also before lyeth the body of the above named | ELIZABETH, who departed this life the 10[th] of Feb. | Anno D'm'i 1623.

[NOTE.—There must be an error in these dates. The wife cannot have had five children and died in 1623, her husband not dying until 1660, aged only 55; unless, indeed, the second date refers to the daughter without specifying that fact.]

The MS. does not give the colours of the arms, and has three heads on the chief in the first quarter of No. I., and two heads on the chief in the dexter coat of No. V. The colours are from the "New View," but that does not give the inscription, and only the quartered shield and No. VI. This book also calls it a spacious monument by the north-west door, adorned "with his Head and half-body, with a book in his right hand, and under his left a death's head." The author of the "New View" also says he was told this gentleman [i.e. William Stidolph] gave ground by which the churchyard was much enlarged southward, but it appeared to him not to be half big enough for this very spacious parish, "where they have often 8 Burials or upwards in an Evening."

Arms: Three battle-axes erect in fesse, a chief ermine; impaling, A wyvern segreant with a lion attacking it from behind.

This is over the inscription, and beneath it is the dexter coat; impaling, On a fesse between three lions' heads erased as many pheons, all within a bordure.

APPENDIX.

Extract from an anonymous MS. entitled "An Aphorismical Discovery of Treasonable Faction," preserved in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, written between 1652 and 1660. Published in "Affairs in Ireland, 1641—1652." (Edited by J. Gilbert.)

1645. "Ormond and his faction examininge all theire witte, to invent a new scene, to frustrate this peere of this suposed comforte, to bringe this fatall design to the period of its wished end, had two strings in his bowe that one fayliegn the other could not misse, the Lord Leutenant therefore seriously adviced the Earle of Tomo(nd) (all this while behavinge himself neuter, and consequently not troubled by either partie) to be reconciled to his cossen Insichuyne (whoe alias were foes) and caused my lord of Muskry, Tomond's nephewe, to worke this attonment, not for any other intention, then to worke the distruction of the K(ing's) partie, the Catholicks, and to impower the Prespeteriants, which reconcelment was to be perfected conditiona(l) that Tomond did give upp Bonrattie to Insichuyne, upon the hands of some prime comaun(der) of his: whereby would mightily indure himself unto the Parliament, and would thereby prove most gratfull .... both did nominate for governor of Bonrattie Colonell Adams .... thither arrivinge with 600 men possessed himself of that brave house, and most comodious for the future trouble of the royallists."

Before giving up the castle of Bunratty to Colonel Adams the Earl of Thomond buried all his plate, etc., in the walls, but before he left some one told the soldiers that he had hidden it, and they made him shew where it was and took it all before his eyes.

Lord Muskerry marched to Bunratty and laid siege to the castle.

Extract from Richard Bellings' "History of the Irish Confederation and the War in Ireland, 1645-6." (Edited by J. Gilbert.)

"Thirdly, the Earl of Thomond, who before lived peaceably, without offending the country, in his castle of Bunratty, admitted into it at this time a garrison of eight hundred foot and threescore horse, most of them reformed officers, and, sayling into England, left that place, which was plentifully provided of victuals, and so seated, as the guarrison might from thence make excursions into the rich countryes which for threescore miles long bordered upon the Shannon in the hands of the Parliament, under the command of (Captain McAdam) a stout officer, who began immediately to raise works to strengthen the castle, that, by reason of the marshes with which it was environed, might in a short time be upon the matter impregnably fortified."

* * * * *

Lord Muskerry encamped in the park and laid siege to the castle, which was considered very strong.

* * * * *

"Wherefore it was resolved that the two pieces of cannon newly sent them from Limerick should be planted to batter the little castle, which we have described to have stood near upon the edge of the outworks which the besieged had raised for defence of the place; the Irish being from thence much annoyed in their trenches, and their approaches retarded thereby. The battery was for two dayes continued against the side of the castle, which being thin, the bullets only peirced it, without shaking the fabrick; and so undaunted did those intrusted with the guard of it maintaine it, that still as the cannon enlarged the breach, they at every shot poured forth a volley by the hole the bullets had made, until, towards the evening of the second day Captain McAdam, who commanded in Bunratty, coming to view the place, and to give order for drawing off his men in case he found it not tenable, received a shot about his hams from a feildpiece that was planted among the gabions, in some of the higher stages of the fences made upon the side of the hill, to incommodate the enemy on his sally, not with any designe to play upon the castle, where it could be of little use; but the cannoneer taking the upper window of the castle for a mark to try his skill, made that shot, which by accident was fatal to McAdam, who then was in the room, to which that window gave light, and being carried thence dyed that night.

"Whereof the Lord Muskery being advertised by one that came off from the beseiged, and knowing how much they were discouraged at the loss of so valiant a person, and how little unanimous they were in the choyce of one to succeed him, he caused provision of fagotts to be made and resolved to take advantage of this their consternation and difference, and to assault them in their works."

* * * * *

After the attack the garrison capitulated for their lives, the officers retaining their swords, and they were allowed to return to Cork by sea.

This gallant, enterprising, and courageous young Officer was selected
By his commander to execute a most important office

In a Manner which excited the utmost admiration

When he was mortally wounded by a cannon-shot, and was
The last victim to the ferocious enemy.

In his death he displayed as much patience, fortitude & resignation
As he evinced courage & bravery during the desperate conflict
And his country has to mourn the premature loss of one
Whose public and private endowments would doubtless
Have rendered him one of its greatest ornaments.
" For I will not trust in my bow, it is not my sword that shall help me, But it is Thou that savest us from our enemies, O Lord
My Strength and My Redeemer. Ps. xiv. 7, 8.

Reviews.

Paul Bush, the Last Rector of Edington and First Bishop of Bristol, 1490—1558. By ARTHUR SCHOMBERG. 1903. Devizes: "Gazette" Office.

THIS is a little brochure which will be very acceptable to Wiltshire men. Paul Bush was born in 1490, and his parents being fairly placed he aspired to studying at the Oxford house of the Bonhommes near the site of Wadham College. He soon acquired a position, taking his Bachelor's degree in 1518, at which time he was numbered among the celebrated poets of Oxford. In 1539 he was Canon Residentiary of Sarum and Chaplain to Henry VIII., and died in 1553, having been consecrated to the See of Bristol in 1542.

This little work gives his portrait, which now hangs in the Bishop's Palace at Bristol. By a lengthy deed (which is given in full) he surrenders Edington Monastery; and his will, September 1558, is also given. His monument is shewn from a tracing of Bush's monument under a canopy of stone, but little can now be deciphered. In the sanctuary his arms were impaled with those of the See, and in the vestry can be seen an engraving of them.

The work is nicely got up, stitched in a coloured wrapper, and making 28 pp., and forms a neat monument to a worthy man and a devout Christian. Mr. Schomberg has done his best to immortalize the former history of one of our earliest bishops.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XIII., Parts 3, 4, 5, and 6, for March, April, May, and June 1903. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THESE four Parts range as fair examples of the Work as it goes along. As frontispiece to the March Number is the plate of Mr. Arnold Greig, and as a separate plate it has that of Captain G. C. Swinton, March Pursuivant. Besides these are four legal bookplates, five designed by Mr. G. H. McCall—the one of Hermann Grünebaum being very artistic, a very neat sketch for Willesden Green Public Library, besides the arms chosen for the Grammar School, Tavistock. The whole forms a very good number.

The April Part has for frontispiece a very good library plate, engraved for W. A. Balaus by Martin Tyroff about 1760, and a plate by Vinycomb for Mr. Drew Appleby, done in that artist's delicate touch with scroll side ornamentation, and in the centre the beautiful spire of St. Nicholas Church, Belfast. There are two plates shewn by Mr. Graham Johnston, another giving the entrance to Gadshill of Dickens notoriety, with Pickwick fishing in pond, and one of Mr. Leonard Courtney shewing his house in Cheyne Walk, Old Chelsea, and also that of Mr. George Cave, giving a perspective view of his house. The plate designed by Mr. French for Mr. and Mrs. Burnham is well worthy of being shewn, the landscape with the mill and the library in front being very original; another by Mr. French is for the Worcester Art Museum.

The May Part gives us three plates by Bruno Héroux, remarkably well done and original, the one shewing St. Peter's at Rome in the distance being very effective. Eight legal bookplates are a good accompaniment to the list of legal bookplates compiled by S. A. Grundy-Newman, which has been spread over the four Parts.

The Part for June has the bookplate of the Colquhoun Club, a dining club in connection with the Royal Society of Literature. It was designed by Philip H. Newman, and is well worth keeping as a sample of modern designing. There are four plates given of the Boston Public Library, three with portraits, viz.: John Adams, George Ticknor, and Longfellow; also the library plate of the King's Own Borderers, and that of the Taunton Castle Library. The plate of the Plymouth Proprietary Library is also shewn. The rough list of legal bookplates is still carried on, accompanied by four plates. These all combined form another good Part.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. V., Part 57. April 1903. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

We have in the first place to wish the Reverend Editor a perfect recovery from his late illness, which had kept him away from his parish up to April last. The contents of the present Number are as usual interesting, one giving an account of the skating at Whittlesey Mere in 1845-6 being very amusing. There is a short account of Bishop Marsh being mobbed at Peterborough for taking the King's side against Queen Caroline. He prepared himself for the worst, for he was at the time represented as dressed in his sister-in-law's skirts, and he meant to beat a retreat into Hunts by means of a boat from the back of the palace. Feeling also ran high in London against him some years after. Mr. W. E. Foster gives a list of the Vicars of Moulton, Lincolnshire, from 1236 up to 1899, and there is also a list of the sons and daughters of inhabitants given in an inquisition made in Moulton. Although dates are not given, mention is made that "John Leland the antiquary had a brother John," who took care of him in his lunacy. This is corroborated by a Mr. William Cole, who dates from Milton July 8, 1772.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. No. 4, Vol. X. April 1903. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

As usual local history forms the main articles of interest in this magazine, and for the present generation it must form most pleasing reading, as among other measures the "Two Penny Act" brought in by the clergy was entirely defeated, and strained the bond between "the King and the colonists, which was but the prelude to the combat that snapped the bond asunder."

John Brown's correspondence is still continued, although he is in prison and daily expecting the gallows, which, he says, appears "in more glorious and resplendent light than that which surrounds the throne of a king." As an uneducated man he has all the rhapsody of a fanatic, as he wished to say to his executors, "I am immortal;" and so, we suppose, he died with the same conceit, for his last letter given is just before he expected execution. His case was like many other men before him—criminal for the sake of notoriety. The Part contains some excellent genealogical notices of the four families of John Minor and that of the Herndon family. It concludes with an ample Index, together with the Title to Vol. X. and Proceedings at the Annual Meeting in January 1903.

In hope of Resurrection to eternal life here resteth | The body of D. KATHERINE COPE, daughter to S^r^ ED- | WARD ASTON of Tixhall in the county of Stafford | Kn^t^. She was wife first to STEPHEN SLANY of London | Esq., To whome she bare one daughter only. Next to | S^r^ WILLIAM CHITWIN of Ingstree in the county of Staf- | ford, Kn^t^, and lastly to S^r^ EDWARD COPE of Cannons- | Ashby in the county of Northampton, Kn^t^, a virtuous | matron full of dayes abounding with all y^e^ emenent | graces of Charity, Piety, Religion, constancy & patience. | She departed this life Jan. XV in the yeare | of Redemption MDCXLVI, aged | LXXX.

The MS. says, "On the south side in ye chancell a small monument." The "New View" calls it "a plain black and white marble monument," and gives the inscription with a few variations: thus, "near" before "here resteth," Dame for D, and Knight instead of Knt. As the monument is gone we have no means of deciding which is correct.

The "New View" says of the next monument that it is on the south side of the chancel, westward from the Stanhope monument, being a handsome white marble monument adorned with cherubims, cornucopia, etc., and the copy of the inscription varies in some minor points.

A Dudley lodgeth Here, peace Idle Fame
It's Epitaph enough to have that name
A Dudley too who in the basest time
When to be just and loyall was a crime
Was both: 'gainst Rebells bravely stood
Unshaken and Undaunted with a flood
Of Tyranny. Now his Tombes sole intent
Shews he deserved But needs no monument
When Rebells dye a tombe some life may give,
He actuates the marble, makes it live.

Shrines may portray our features on a wall
But goodness crowns them; that is all in all.
Statues present lives, Families, and dayes.
This shrine was rear'd by her whose love was such
Her charge in his concerne was nere toe much
So deare is nuptiall Zeale Though i'th' outward part Turne dust It holds impression in the heart.

None in his spousall offices more deare

Thus from the north he to this city came of Yarmouth in the County of Norfolk

Bookplate of Amelia Sophia, Countess of Yarmouth.*

AMELIA SOPHIA DE WALMODEN, sometimes called AMELIA SOPHIA MARY ANNE, Baroness von Walmoden in Germany, wife or widow of Adam Gotlieb, Baron von Walmoden, a Hanoverian noble (by whom she had male issue), and daughter of Lieut.-Gen. von Wendt, the presumed mistress of George II. during one of his visits to Hanover (in his wife's lifetime), came to England in 1738, soon after the Queen Consort's death, and, after having been naturalized, Feb. 1740, was created, 24 March 1740, Baroness Yarmouth, co. Norfolk, and Countess of Yarmouth, for the term of her life. She died at Hanover 20 Oct. 1765, aged about 56, when the peerage became extinct. This is the last case of a British peerage conferred on a Royal favourite. She had one son, who was not acknowledged, and who was commonly called about the Court "Master Louis." The King is said to have left her £12,000.

A GENEALOGICAL HISTORY

OF THE

Family of Adams of Cavan, etc.*

The Family of Magennis, Viscount Iveagh.†

The Magennises were from a very early period the territorial Lords of Clan Aodha under the O'Haugheys, Chiefs of Iveagh in the County of Down, claiming descent from the famous warrior Connall Ceanach, and ranking as the head of the Clanna Rory. Morris McLoughlin, King of Ireland (1150—68), granted, about 1160, a Charter to the Abbey of Newry, among the witnesses to which is Aodh (Hugh), the great Magennis, Chief of the Clan Aodha in O'Neach Uladh, now the Baronies of Upper and Lower Iveagh, County Down.

In 1172 Mulmurry Macmurrough, Lord of Muintir Birn, was slain by Hugh Magennis and the Clan Aodha of Ui Eathach Uladh. Muintir Birn was a part of Tyrone on the borders of Monaghan.

In 1173 Hugh Magennis and the Clan Aodha invaded and plundered the third part of Armagh, and about three months afterwards the said Hugh was slain.

In 1208 Duvinnis Magennis, Lord of Clan Aodha, was slain by the son of Donslevy O'Haughy, Chief of Iveagh. Subsequently the Magennises extended their territory and became Lords of Iveagh.

In 1314, when Edward II. sought the aid of the magnates of Ireland, he directed an especial letter to Admillis MacAnegus, "Duci Hiberniorum et Onenagh," he being then "The Magennis."

In 1349 Murtough Riaganagh Magennis was slain by his own kinsmen, or as the Annals of Clanmacnois state, by his brothers, and under the date 1348.

In 1359 Art, the son of Auliffe O'Rourke, was slain by Magennis.

In 1360 Art, son of Gillareagh Magennis, was treacherously slain by the sons of Savadge, a family who inhabited the territory now called "The Ards" in the east of the County Down.

In 1374 Senicin (Jenkin) Savadge was slain by Magennis.

In 1376 John O'Rooney, chief poet to "The Magennis," died.

In 1380 Art Magennis defeated the English and the people of Orior (part of Armagh) in a battle in which O'Hanlon, Chief of Orior, and many of the English were slain. Subsequently Edmund Mortimer, who had married the granddaughter of Edward III., came over as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, when Magennis, who with various native chiefs had waited upon him, was treacherously taken prisoner in Mortimer's house. After this the Irish, and many of the English, became afraid to place any confidence in Mortimer, or trust themselves in his power. This Art Magennis, "sole prop of the hospitality of Ireland in his time," died in 1383 of the plague at Trim, where he was imprisoned.

In 1396 Cu-Uladh-Magennis, heir to the Lordship of Iveagh, was slain by the English.

In 1399 Murtough Magennis, son of Murtough More, Lord of Iveagh, was slain by his own tribe.

* Communicated by MAXWELL ADAMS, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. From a MS. by the late Rev. B. W. ADAMS, D.D.—continued from p. 218.

† Compiled from "The Annals of the IV. Masters"; John D'Alton's "Illustrations, Historical and Genealogical, of King James the Second's Army List, 1689"; Lodge's "Peerage"; Burke's "Extinct Peerage"; "Charta Abbatiæ de Newry"; Clarendon MSS., British Museum; and Ware's "Prelates of Ireland."

In 1400 Rory Magennis, the son of Art ("The Magennis"), was slain by the sons of Cu-Uladh-O'Neill, assisted by Caffar Magennis, his own brother.

In 1418 Sir John Talbot, Baron Furnival, Lord Chief Justice of Ireland, having made a foray on Iveagh, sustained a severe defeat, in which an immense number of the English were slain or taken prisoners by Hugh Magennis ("The Magennis"), assisted by Mac-j-Neill Boy, Chief of Clannaboy.

In 1420 the Earl of Ormond, Lord Deputy, waging war with the Ultonians to obtain dominion for O'Neill, reduced Magennis under submission to O'Neill and delivered up his hostages to him.

In 1422 Niall Garv O'Donnell, Lord of Tirconnell, invaded Iveagh and subjugated Magennis, who subsequently assisted him in his expedition into Connaught against the MacDonoughs.

In 1424 the Earl of Ormond, Lord Deputy, made an excursion against Magennis and demolished his castle of Lough Bricrenn (now Lough Brickland, County Down), killed the Constable of his gallowglasses, and almost the whole ward of the Castle. Soon afterwards Hugh Magennis died of the plague, and his son Rory succeeded him as "The Magennis," and was slain in 1426, in his own house, by Brian Magennis.

In 1453 Cu-Uladh, a son of Cuthbhan Magennis, heir to the Lordship of Iveagh, with Hugh Magennis and several other chiefs, fell in the battle of Ardglass, fighting for Henry Mac-j-Neill Boy, Chief of Clannaboy, against the Savadges of Ards, assisted by the English of Dublin, when the latter were victorious, the Chief of Clannaboy being taken prisoner.

In 1488 Brian Magennis ("The Magennis"), son of Art, died, and his brother Hugh was inaugurated in his place.

In 1491 Echmily, son of Hugh, son of Art Magennis, was slain in his own house in a nocturnal assault by the sons of Melaghlin, the son of Murtough, son of Owen O'Neill.

In 1493 Hugh, son of Art, son of Hugh Magennis, assisted Henry Oge O'Neill against Hugh Roe O'Donnell at the battle of Beanna-Boircha (part of the Mourne Mountains), where the latter was victorious.

In 1495 he again assisted O'Neill in invading Fermanagh, but they had to agree to Maguire's terms for peace.

In 1501 Rory McMahon, son of Brian, son of Redmond, was slain by the sons of Magennis.

In 1504 (15 August) Donnell Magennis, with several other Irish chiefs, assisted the Lord Justice (Garrett, son of Thomas, Earl of Kildare) against MacWilliam Burke of Clanricard, Turlough O'Brien, etc., at the battle of Cnoc-Tuagh (now Knockdoc, a hill near Galway), where MacWilliam Burke and his allies were defeated.

In 1520 Donnell, the son of Hugh, the son of Art Magennis ("The Magennis"), died, and his brother Phelim the Hospitable was inaugurated in his place. He also died, and Edmond Boy Magennis was styled "The Magennis."

In 1526 Glasney, the son of Hugh Magennis, Abbot of the Monks of Newry and Prior of Down and Saul, was slain by the sons of Donnell Magennis, namely Donnell Oge and his kinsmen.

In 1539 Murtough Magennis was taken prisoner by the men of Oriel after the defeat of the northern forces by Lord Leonard, the Lord Justice, at the battle of Bel-atha-hoa (now Belahoe, Barony of Farney, County Monaghan), and after some time was put to death by them at the instigation of his own tribe, who bribed them to commit the deed.

In 1550 Arthur Magennis swore fidelity to Edward VI., and was by him confirmed in the bishopric of Dromore, while Eugene (Owen) Magennis was about the same time Bishop of Derry.

In 1566 Mary, the daughter of Manus, son of Hugh Duv, son of Hugh Roe O'Donnell, Prince of Tirconnell, and wife of "The Magennis," died on 8 October. At the Parliament, which met in Dublin 26 April 1585 under Sir John Perrott, the Lord Deputy, the Magennises were represented by Hugh, the son of Donnell Oge, the son of Donnell Duv alias Ciar (of the dark brown hair) Magennis.

In 1595 Hugh, son of Hugh, son of Donnell Oge Magennis, a man of his patrimony of greatest name and renown among the English and Irish of Ireland, died penitently.

In 1607 Catherine Magennis, daughter of "The Magennis," who had married Hugh O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, left Ireland, on board a vessel from Lough Swilly, for Normandy. On the Plantation of Ulster, Bryan Oge Mac Rory Magennis of Edenticallow, County Down, having surrendered all his lordship, precinct, or circuit of Killwarlin, with all the townlands within the said territory, obtained a re-grant thereof in 1611 to hold the same henceforth free from Royal Composition. Other members of the family obtained grants of estates in the same county. Sir Arthur Magennis, Knt., also releasing to the King all his claim and right to the territory of Iveagh, had, in 1613, a grant of various and extensive townlands of his old inheritance within Iveagh, the extent of which was soon after directed to be ascertained on inquisition. He was raised to the Peerage of Ireland as Viscount Magennis of Iveagh, County Down, by a patent dated at Westminster 18 July 1623. He married Sarah, daughter of Hugh O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, and had issue Hugh, his heir; Evelyn, married Sir James MacSorly Boy MacDonnell, Knt., ancestor of the present Earl of Antrim; Catherine, married Colonel Adams (vide p. 8); and another daughter, married to Bryan O'Neill of Edinduff, Carrick, ancestor of the late Viscount O'Neill. Viscount Iveagh, dying 21 May 1629, was succeeded by his son Hugh Magennis as second Viscount, who married Mary, eldest daughter of Sir John Bellew of Bellew's Town, and dying, was succeeded by his son Arthur Magennis as third Viscount, who with Daniel Magennis of Angerstown, County Meath, was attainted in 1642. At the Supreme Council in 1646 sat Arthur Magennis, Roman Catholic Bishop of Down and Connor, as one of the Spiritual Peers, while of the Commons were five of the family. Oliver Cromwell's Act of 1652 excepted from pardon for life and estate Viscount Iveagh, Sir Con Magennis, Knt., of the County of Down, and five others of the name. The declaration of Royal thanks in the Act of Settlement includes Captain Phelim Magennis and Lieutenant Bryan Magennis, of the Province of Ulster, with Lieutenant Con "Mac Gennis" of Iveagh, County Down. Lord Iveagh, dying 1683, was interred 1 May in St. Catherine's Church, Dublin (Lodge's "Peerage," vol. iv., p. 170), and was succeeded by either his brother or uncle, Bryan Magennis, as fourth Viscount, who appears in the Pension List of the Establishment for 1687-88 under the name of "Arthur, Viscount Iveagh" for a pension of £300 [see original vellum manuscript in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, marked MS. E.I.I., dated 3 February at Whitehall, and signed by the Council in England]. Besides Colonel Lord Iveagh, the name of Magennis is commissioned on five other regiments. Lord Iveagh and his sept furnished James II. with a Regiment of Dragoons and another of Infantry. This nobleman sat in the Parliament of 1689; while in the Commons, Murtough Magennis of Green Castle and Eiver Magennis of Castlewellan represented the County Down, and Bernard Magennis of Bally-gorionbeg was one of the members for the Borough of Killileagh. Lord Iveagh was appointed Governor (i.e. Lord Lieutenant) of the County of Down, while two other members of the family were his deputy-governors.

In 1690 Lord Iveagh was Governor of Drogheda with a garrison of 1500 men. On the day succeeding the Battle of the Boyne, King William sent Brigadier de la Mellonière with a thousand horse and a party of foot to summon the town to surrender, and on their hesitation to inform the garrison that he should bring up his cannon, when they must expect no quarter. Lord Iveagh surrendered on condition that he and his garrison should be conveyed to Athlone, the nearest garrisoned town, with their baggage, leaving behind them their stores, ammunition and arms, except the officers' swords.

In June 1691 two officers of this sept were killed in Athlone, and at the battle of Aughrim 12 July 1691 was taken prisoner Lieut.-Colonel Murtough Magennis

(for to that rank had a Captain of Sir Neill O'Neill's Dragoons arrived by reason of the slaughter of that gallant regiment at the Battle of the Boyne). When Galway surrendered, 26 July 1691, Lady Iveagh and her daughter, being then resident in the town, had an especial protection for themselves in the Articles of Capitulation. She had been Lady Margaret De Burgh, daughter of William, the seventh Earl of Clanricarde, and had married 1689 Viscount Iveagh. At the close of the campaign he did not accompany the Irish Army to France, but entered the Austrian Service with a choice battalion of 500 men, part of the 2000 Irish troops of King James's old army, who were landed from Cork at Hamburg in June 1692. He employed them against the Turks, by whom they were so severely handled that the remnant was drafted into other corps of the Imperial Army. The attainders of 1691 present twelve of the name of Magennis. Lord Iveagh died in 1692 without an heir, when the title became extinct.

Lady Iveagh married secondly Colonel Thomas Butler of Kilcash, and died 19 July 1744, leaving issue three sons and five daughters.

A Captain Murtough Magennis of Bulkeley's Brigade was wounded at Lauffield in 1747.

The Family of O'Neill.

The family of O'Neill descend from Niall Glumdubh, Monarch of Ireland, who was killed in battle A.D. 954 against the Danes. Their title was "The O'Neill." One of them, Henry Mac Owen O'Neill, married Eleanor, eldest daughter of Thomas, seventh Earl of Kildare; their son Con More O'Neill married a daughter of Gerald, eighth Earl of Kildare, and had issue two sons, Con Baccagh O'Neill, or "The Lame," and Art Oge O'Neill, ancestor of Sir Phelim Roe O'Neill (vide p. 8). The elder son Con, on relinquishing the title of "The O'Neill," was in 1552 created by Henry VIII. Earl of Tyrone, with remainder to his son Matthew, created Baron of Dungannon, who was killed during his father's lifetime by his brother Shane, leaving three sons, Brian, Hugh, and Cormac. The eldest, Brian, became second Earl of Tyrone, but was soon murdered by his brother Hugh, who became in 1585 the third Earl of Tyrone, but throwing off his allegiance to England he assumed the ancient title of "The O'Neill," and engaged in a war against the English, which, for a time, was successful, gaining several victories over the armies sent against him; but after the siege of Kinsale in 1603, finding his cause hopeless, he fled to Spain. He was attainted in 1612 by James I., when his title, Earl of Tyrone, became forfeited. He died 20 July 1616 at Rome, having had issue five sons: (1) Hugh O'Neill, died s.p. in Italy. (2) Henry O'Neill, a Lieut.-General in the Spanish Army, where he was called El Conde de Tyrone. He died leaving issue, which became extinct in the male line in the second generation. (3) Shane O'Neill,* remained in Ireland. (4) Con O'Neill, fled to Spain. (5) Bryan O'Neill, hanged at Brussels in 1617 for high treason against James I.

* In 1895 the death occurred in Paris of the Comte O'Neill de Tyrone (as he was known in that city), who claimed to be a descendant of this Shane O'Neill, and hereditary head of the family. Although his family had long been settled in France, he kept up his interest in Ireland, and was well known to Irishmen visiting Paris. During the Franco-German War he identified himself with the Irish Ambulance.

HENRY CHAS SIRR.

The hour of my departure's come,
I hear the voice that calls me home.
At last O Lord let troubles cease
And let thy servant die in peace.
The race appointed I have run,
The combats o'er, the prize is won.
And now my witness is on high
And now my records in the sky.
Not in my innocence I trust
I bow before thee in the dust
And through my Saviour's blood alone
I look for mercy at thy throne.
I leave the world without a tear
Save for the friends I held so dear.
To heal their sorrows Lord descend
And to the friendless prove a friend.
I come, I come at thy command,
I give my spirit to thy hands.
Stretch forth thy everlasting arms
And shield me in the last alarms.
The hour of my departure's come,
I hear the voice that calls me home.
Now, O my God, let troubles cease,
Now let thy servant die in peace.

CASTLEREAGH CORRESPONDENCE.

(Vol. i., p. 423.)

Lord Castlereagh (Chief Secretary of Ireland) to Mr. Wickham (Under Secretary to the Duke of Portland, Prime Minister).

DUBLIN CASTLE,

Secret.] November 3, 1798.

SIR, I understand from Captain Taylor that Lord Cornwallis† has been pleased to recommend an arrangement in favour of Major Sirr, highly advantageous to his interest. The services Major Sirr has rendered to the King's Government, since I have been in office, are such as to make me feel it an incumbent duty to bear testimony, in the strongest terms, to his merits.

From the want of any efficient system of police in this city, he has been constantly employed by Government, on every occasion which called for great personal exertions, discretion, & courage; his life has frequently been exposed, particularly in the arrest of Lord Edward Fitzgerald. I can truly state that, during the most trying period of public danger, the metropolis was peculiarly indebted for its tranquility to the unceasing activity of Major Sirr, assisted by Mr Swan, who so nearly lost his life in that same struggle, which proved fatal to Mr Ryan, & in which Major Sirr was exposed to very imminent danger.

Permit me to request that you will communicate the above to the Duke of Portland, and assure his Grace that the King has not a more faithful officer than Major Sirr in his service.

I have the honour to be, etc.,

CASTLEREAGH.

COMMISSION BOOK, IRISH RECORD OFFICE.

WHITEHALL,
29 November 1798.

His Excellency The Lord Lieutenant.

MY LORD,

Having laid before the King your Excellency's letter of the 10th Instant enclosing a list of successions, which you propose for the army in Ireland, I am Commanded to acquaint your Excellency that his Majesty is graciously pleased to approve of all of them except as to the appointment of Town Major of Dublin, which it would be highly objectionable to have sold, but his Majesty has been pleased to say that a Lieutenant Colonelcy on the Irish Establishment or a troop of Cavalry may hereafter be sold to reimburse the present Town Major, and that Major Sirr shall be now appointed to that situation without purchase. The necessary Commissions will be immediately prepared for the Royal Signature & transmitted to your Excellency in the usual manner.

I am, etc.,
PORTLAND.

The Lord Lieutenant having recommended him, Sirr lodged Three Thousand Guineas for the Commission (the pay of Town Major then being less than subsequently). Sirr was gazetted to a majority of Dragoons, and the purchase of the Town Majority effected by the sale of that Commission. The Town Majority was unexpectedly presented without purchase in acknowledgment of great and voluntary services beyond mere duty, and the office created into a very active and confidential one.

"On 3rd August 1796 Vice-Admiral Sir George Keith Elphinstone was lying in Simon's Bay, South Africa, and in his fleet was the 'Sceptre,' Captain William Essington." (James's "Naval History," vol. i., p. 535.)

"On 9th October 1797 Captain William Essington commanded the 'Triumph,' one of the British North Sea fleet, under Admiral Adam Duncan. On 11th they engaged with the Dutch fleet, under De Winter. The 'Triumph' had for opponent the 'Wassenaer,' which she compelled to strike. With others she attacked the Dutch flagship the 'Vryheid,' which at length struck. The 'Wassenaer,' although she had struck to the 'Triumph,' was fired at by a Dutch brig that followed her out of the line, and which brig actually compelled her to rehoist her colours. The 'Russel' soon afterwards coming up, the 'Wassenaer' again struck them, and was taken possession of. (Battle of Camperdown.) The 'Triumph' had 25 seamen, 3 marines, and 1 boy killed; her captain, 1st and 3rd lieutenants (Patrick Chapman and George Trollope), master (James Read), 1 midshipman (Mr. Jones), and 50 seamen and marines wounded. Captain Holland of the 'Wassenaer' was mortally wounded early in the action. Gold medals were struck and presented to the admirals and captains to be worn. Reviews.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XIII., Parts 7 and 8, for July and August 1903. London : A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE July Part has for frontispiece the bookplate of Arthur Hopton, of Clements Inn, 1611 ; it is all in outline, and unusually large. A long account of the family from 1470 is given by the Rev. Wickham M. Birch, with five smaller arms. Another one of George Frederick Bodley of Bridgefoot is large, but has some good mantling about it. Mr. Jewers gives an account of the bookplate of General Sir Reginald Pole-Carew, which is carefully drawn by Mr. G. W. Eve. There are four bookplates designed by the Hon. Frances Wolseley, that of the Field-Marshal Viscount having a mantling very artistically arranged. The bookplate of Mr. A. Price Haig, as designed by Mr. Graham Johnston, is well done.

The August Part has the plate of Chelsea Public Library, the figures rather roughly drawn, and five bookplates engraved by Mr. F. G. House, and inserted as a supplement by Messrs. Truslove and Hanson; each plate is well delineated, particularly the one for Miss Fetherstonhaugh Frampton. The old plates and the improved new bookplate is shewn by Mr. J. Rogers Rees, who has a little Paper on the subject, and illustrates it by shewing the title of a "New Dictionary" by William Walker, B.D., in 1691.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XXXIV., Nos. 2 and 3, April and July 1903. Society's Office: 226 West 58th Street, New York, U.S.A.

THIS is the best of the genealogical periodicals which come to England, and the Part for April has an excellent portrait of Mr. Heber Reginald Bishop, one of America's Railway Directors, and celebrated as the largest collector of jade, which he finally presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, shortly afterwards dying of heart disease.

The next article with a plate is the Jumel Mansion, at Manhattan Island. It was used at times by General Washington and by the officers of the British Army, and went through many vicissitudes, and finally became the head-quarters of the war party. Of Church Records, those of the Corporation of Zion in New Germantown, and Registers of Marriages, Baptisms, and Deaths in East Hampton are next given, followed by the family history of Edward Fuller, and inscriptions from Gilead Cemetery, Carmel, N.Y., and a general Obituary, etc., complete the April Number, which must be interesting to many Americans.

The July Part has a portrait of Mr. Asa Fitch, Physician and Naturalist, who for fifty years had made the latter a study, and was created State Entomologist in 1854. Several of the papers in the April Part are continued, and an account is given of the Dumont Family and John de Witt, with his portrait. An Obituary and Book Notices close the Part.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. V., Part 58. July 1903. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part begins with a good account of Dr. Richard Howland, Bishop of Peterborough in 1584. It is embellished, too, with his portrait, autograph, and seal; he had it when he was ordained. His father was a Salter of London, and he was one among ten other sons and one daughter. His seventh brother was knighted as Sir Giles, and was a Grocer of London. A Paper on Charteris Church Notes, written in 1745, is interesting. There are excellent accounts given again of the drainage of the Fens in Charles the First's time, and a company of noblemen was formed to carry it out.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XI., No. 1. July 1903. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THE Virginia Committee of Correspondence, the Surrender of Virginia in 1651-2, and an account of Virginia in 1638-9, occupy a fair amount of this Part, and John Brown's letters are continued. Isle of Wight County Records and Virginia Gleanings in England, and the Militia in the Revolution, are interesting locally, and the genealogy of the Brooke Family and the Herndon Family, besides several others, and the usual historical Notes and Queries, complete the Part.

Wandsworth receives over £170 annually from this charity.

In the Burial Register for 1627-8 are these two entries:—

Feb. 7 Henry Smith of London, gent.
Feb. 14 Henrie Smith, Esq.

The Funeral Certificate in the College of Arms records Smith was buried on 7th day of February, "being of the age of 79 years at May next."

His will is dated 24 April 1627, and proved 23 January 1627-8.

In the Churchwardens' Accounts for 1549 the name of Walter Smith is mentioned. He possibly was Henry's father.

On a monument on the south side was this inscription:—"Here lieth the Body of EDWARD SNOW, of Chicksands in the County of Bedford, Esquire, in memory of whom EMMA his wife, daughter to WILLIAM BYNE, in the County of Sussex, Esquire, erected this monument. He had issue ELIZABETH, ALICE, and SARAH. He deceased at the Mannor of Alfarthing, Anno Dom. 1587."

SNOW FAMILY OF WANDSWORTH.

ARMS.—Per fesse embattled azure and argent three antelopes' heads erased counterchanged, horned or, SNOW.

Aubrey, in his "Natural History of Surrey," gave a transcript of an inscription at Wandsworth, Surrey, now lost :—

"Here lieth the Body of Edward Snow, of Chicksands in the county of Bedford, esquire, in memory of whom Emma his wife, daughter to William Byne, in the County of Sussex, esquire, erected this monument. He had issue Elizabeth, Alice, and Sarah. He deceased at the Mannor of Alfarthing Anno Dom. 1587."

Edward Snow was second son of Richard Snow (Will proved P.C.C. 1554, 18, More) of Chicksands, co. Bedford, and his wife Elizabeth (Will proved P.C.C. 1587, 17, Spencer), a gentlewoman of the Privy Chamber to Queen Elizabeth, and daughter of .... Cavendish, aunt to the old Countess of Shrewsbury. He married Emma, daughter of William Bynd of Wakeherst, Sussex, and his wife "Allice," daughter of Richard Colepeper of Wakeherst. After her husband's death in 1587 she married John Bowyer, J.P., second son of John Bowyer of Camberwell, Surrey, who died 2 June 1623, s.p.

As the Parish Registers as well as the Churchwardens' Accounts for the parish of Wandsworth are missing for 1587, there is no record locally of Edward Snow. His name does not occur in the parish deeds, though in 1608 Cecily Riche assigns a lease of certain lands belonging to the church to John Bowyar, who was Lord of the Manor of Alfarthing in 1598. He appears to have received this manor from his grandfather Robert Draper, and Edward Snow was his tenant.

The will of Edwarde Snowe of Alfarthing, par. Wansworthe, Surrey, is in P.C.C., 73, Spencer (1587).

Edward and Emma Snow had three daughters, Elizabeth, Alice, and Sarah.

160¾ Feb. 2 Sir Robert Albany, Knight, married Mrs Alce Snow ; at Wandsworth. (Wandsworth Parish Registers.)

Sir Robert was son of William Albaney of London and his wife Thomazin, daughter of Richard Butle.

Sir Robert and Alice had issue, Emme, Allice, Robert (æt. 10 in 1623), William (æt. 8 in 1623), Frances, and Thomazin.

1607 Aug. 10 Sir Richard Conquest, Knight, married Mrs Sara Snowe ; at Wandsworth. (Wandsworth Parish Registers.)

Sir Richard was second son of Sir Richard Conquest of Houghton, Beds, by Dorothy, daughter of Robert Hewet of Ampthill, Beds, Esq.

Sir Richard and Sarah had one child, Emma.

The family of William Bynd intermarried with that of John and Elizabeth Bowyer : John Bynd was first husband of Elizabeth Bowyer ; Catharine Bynd was married to Sir Edmond Bowyer ; and Emma Bynd was married to Edward Snow and afterwards to John Bowyer.

Bookplate of John Hervey, Esq.*

JOHN HERVEY, Esq., a distinguished member of the House of Commons, Hereditary High Steward of Bury St. Edmunds, was elevated to the Peerage, 23 March 1703, as Baron Hervey of Ickworth, co. Suffolk, and created, 19 Oct. 1714, EARL OF BRISTOL. He married 1st, 1 Nov. 1688, Isabella, daughter and sole heir of the Right Hon. Sir Robert Carr, Bart., of Sleaford, co. Lincoln, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and granddaughter (maternally) of Lord Arlington, by whom (who died 7 March 1692-3) he had a son CARR, Lord Hervey (who died unmarried 15 Nov. 1723), and two daughters. The Earl married 2ndly, 25 July 1695, Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas Felton, Bart., of Playford, co. Suffolk (by his wife Lady Elizabeth Howard, daughter and coheir of James, 3rd Earl of Suffolk), by whom (who died 2 May 1741) he had eleven sons and six daughters. (Vide Burke's "Peerage.")

A Heraldic and Physiological Curiosity.†

In July 1698 Thomas Greenhill, chirurgeon of London, petitioned the Earl Marshall, that, being the thirty-ninth child and seventh son of one father by one mother, he might be allowed a difference in his Arms to be borne by him in commemoration thereof.

This was transmitted by the hands of Blanche Lyon, who was at this time the Duke's private pursuivant.

At the College of Heralds [Original Grants, vol. iv., fols. 276-9] is the grant which resulted and in these words:—

"To all and singular to whom these presentes shall come Sir Thomas S^{t} George Knight, Principall King of Armes, and Sir Henry S^{t} George Knight, Clarenceux King of Armes, send Greeting. Whereas Thomas Greenhill of the City of London, Chirurgion [thirty-ninth child and seventh son of William Greenhill of Greenhill in y^{e} County of Middlesex by his only wife Elizabeth Daughter of John Jones of London], has made application to his Grace Henry Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshall of England, y^{t} the Arms born and used, under the hand of William Ryley, by his said Father—scilicet, Vert 2 Barrs Argent, in chief a Leopard passant or—may be allowed and confirmed to be born by him wth y^{e} Alterations of y^{e} Barrs from Argent to Ermine, and whereas they have borne for their Crests in seals and otherwise a Demi-Griphon, he may be allowed to bear y^{e} same Gules, powdered with thirty-nine Mullets or. And forasmuch as y^{e} said Earl Marshall, being well satisfyed of the Qualifications of y^{e} said Thomas Greenhill, and in consideration of his Services to his Grace and his Family, did by Warrant or Order under his Hand and Seal of his Office of Earl Marshall, bearing Date y^e^ Eight day of August last past, Order and appoint Us to Grant Allow and Confirm y^e^ said Arms and Crest so differenced as abovesaid. Know ye therefore y^t^ We y^e^ said Garter and Clarenceux, in Pursuance of y^e^ said Earl Marshall's Order, and by Virtue of y^e^ Letters Pattents of o^r^ Offices, to each of us respectively Granted, under y^e^ Great Seal of England, have allowed and confirmed and by these Presents do Grant allow and Confirm unto the said Thomas Greenhill y^e^ said Arms and Crest with the Alterations and Additions abovesaid, as in y^e^ Margin hereof is more plainly depicted. To be borne and used for ever hereafter by him the said Thomas Greenhill and y^e^ Heirs and other Descendents off his Body lawfully begotten, in Shield, Coat-armour, Penon, Seal, or otherwise according to y^e^ Law of Armes, withoutt Lett or Interruption of any Person or Persons whatsoever. In Witness whereof We y^e^ said Garter and Clarenceux Kings of Armes have to these Presents subscribed our Names and affixed y^e^ Seals of our Respective Offices y^e^ first Day of September, in y^e^ Tenth year of the Reigne of o^r^ Sovereigne Lord William y^e^ Third, by y^e^ Grace of GOD King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, Annoque Domini 1698.

"THOMAS S^r^ GEORGE, Garter,
"Principall King of Armes.

"HENRY S^r^ GEORGE,
"Clarenceux King of Armes."

I would draw attention to several interesting points: The William Ryley mentioned was called Norroy by the Parliament, and advanced to be Clarenceux on the death of Arthur Squibb in May 1646, after which Edward Byshe, who was named Garter in 1646, and Ryley seem to have constituted the whole staff of the Heralds' College and took all the fees they could make. The proclamation 4 September 1660, addressed to Sir Edward Walker (he had been deposed in 1645 and was recreated Garter 1660), declares, "Whereas Edward Bish, Arthur Squibb, and W^m^ Ryley have for divers years usurped," etc. It then enacts that all grants of Arms made by them be null and void, and orders them to be destroyed and defaced. (The original is at the College—see my "Earl Marshal's Court in England," pp. 58-9.) Therefore Thomas Greenhill's father's grant was null and void! Among the Papers at the Heralds' College there is a note that a drawing on vellum of the Arms, as altered and sought for, had been submitted by Thomas. No doubt this was the work of his friend Blanche Lyon; and the wording, "in consideration of his services to his Grace and his Family," shewing that Thomas was and had been for some time their medical attendant, readily accounts for the friendly relations of these two—Thomas Greenhill and Blanche Lyon—who put forward and aided Greenhill's application. I think it is extremely rare to get so strong a concurrence of proof. We have (1) Thomas declaring the most unusual and startling fact of the family in which he was thirty-ninth, and on that plea asking its heraldic recognition! (2) Blanche Lyon, the Earl Marshall's own Herald, who had ready means of verifying that extraordinary statement, risks his future career in placing before his Master a statement which the Medical profession declares to be now impossible. (3) The Earl Marshall knew him as his medical attendant, and was willing to testify to such an extraordinary event by ordering the thirty-nine Mullets as desired to be placed on the Crest in demonstration thereof. (4) The Kings of Arms, jealous of the honour of the Earl Marshall and their own dignity, must have satisfied themselves by evidences—before they would carry to completion what, if not exactly true, would have been a transparent and conspicuous farce—easily disproved, and entailing disgrace and shame on all implicated! I would not have considered all this as at all necessary, except to prove that whatever limit to the extent of families may now prevail, we have here an indisputable case in 1698, and physiological changes must have come since!

Among the Papers preserved at the Heralds' College is a volume of much later date, entitled "Pingo MSS.," where, at fols. 276-9, are collections for the Greenhill Pedigree—from William Greenhill of Greenhill, the father of Thomas—after whose name appears "39 children, 7 of which were sons," but only the names of the six sons who survived are entered; all the rest died young. William, the father, is described as Secretary to General Monk (created Duke of Albemarle in 1660; died 3 January 1670) and of Hyde in Abbots Langley, Herts, as well as of Greenhill in Harrow, Middlesex. Cussans, in his "History of Hertfordshire," helps us here, as he notes (vol. iii., p. 88) the conveyance of the Manor of Hyde in 1612 by Lawrence Greene of London to Henry Greenhill of Greenhill Grove in the parish of Harrow, from whose son* William it descended to another William, the father of our Thomas, "chirurgion." Henry, the eldest son of this William and brother of Thomas, sold the Manor in 1714 to Edward Strong, a noted Mason of London. Cussans, when writing his work, had never seen the original grant to Thomas; at p. 97 he gives the date 1698, but quotes from an incorrect copy among the Stow MSS., No. 670, in British Museum, fol. 73.

It is mentioned (Pingo MSS.) that the children were all at single births except one, and that seven only of the thirty-nine were surviving in 1698.

In "Gent. Mag." for 1805, Part I., p. 405, "Chris. Johnson" communicates that a small portrait of Mrs. Greenhill—at Wallingwells, the residence of Sir Thomas Woollaston White, Bart.—has a MS. note on the back: "she had 39 children by one husband. They were all born alive and baptized, and all Single births save one. The last child, who was born after his father's death, was a chirurgeon in King Street, Bloomsbury, and wrote Νεκροκηδεια.

(Signed) "RICH. ASHBY, a clergyman."

As no family connection seems at all probable, I think this picture must have been purchased and hung up at Wallingwells as a curiosity in natural history (?).

In "Notes and Queries" for September 1852 (First Series, vol. vi., p. 303) is given a MS. note written in a copy of Νεκροκηδεια and sent by E. D.: "Mrs Greenhill, mother of the author, had 39 children," etc., just as above, and almost word for word up to "Bloomsbury."

"Νεκροκηδεια or the Art of embalming, wherein is shewn the right [sic] of burial, the funeral ceremonies, and the several ways of preserving the dead bodies in most nations of the world," etc., 4to, London, 1705 [British Museum Press Mark 454, A. 22], was written by our Thomas Greenhill. Among the subscribers are William Greenhill, Esq. (three copies), and Mr. John Greenhill (one copy). In an allegorical frontispiece, on the left hand top corner, is a curtain against which hangs a shield of Arms and Crest as granted in 1698, but the artist has failed to get thirty-nine mullets into the limited space on the Crest. The work consists of three letters, viz.: (a) To Chas Bernard, Serj.-Surgeon to her Maty & present Master of the Surgeons Company & one of the Surgeons to St Barts Hospl; (b) To Dr John Lawson, sometime president of the Coll. of Physicians, London;

* It is not within the scope of this paper, but I think it likely that if Mr. Cussans had consulted the will of Henry Greenhill of Greenhill in the parish of Harrow, proved at P.C.C. 21 August 1630 by his brother William Greenhill, he might have hesitated to write son. The reference is 69, Scroope.

and (c) To D^r^ Hans Sloane, Sec^y^ to the Royal Society and F.C.P., London. The second and third letters are quite interesting reading, and contain accounts of Egypt, the Nile, Pyramids, etc., with many illustrations, culled from the works of travel published at that date.

I would warn my readers against the inaccurate account given in the "Dictionary of National Biography," vol. xxiii., pub. 1890, of Thomas Greenhill (1681—1740?). The writer cannot have seen the original grant of Arms, 1698—"born 1681." Are we to suppose that a young surgeon ætatis 17 (if he could hold a diploma at that age) could venture to apply for such a distinction! and could thus, still an infant, have earned that the Earl Marshall should be "well satisfyed of his Qualifications," and "in consideration of his Services to his Grace and his Family," etc.? Such language could only apply to the experienced medical attendant upon such an illustrious household. Nor does it seem probable that a young man of 24 could have published the book in 1705 and addressed his letters to such distinguished heads of the profession. That may be possible. The other case pointed out is not. If William the father died in 1681, Thomas cannot have been a posthumous child! The grant is absolutely exact evidence, and was given to this Thomas and his descendants. Again, it seems to me that the, I am glad to say anonymous, writer never saw the original grant, or he would not have said that the lady's maiden name was White; she was daughter of John Jones.

The Greenhills have been at Harrow for many generations—I suppose they may be found even as early as the thirteenth century—and there were several branches. The Abbots Langley Registers of Births, Marriages, and Deaths from 1653 to 1680 have been missing for many years, as noted in the Register Census Act Report of 1830 ("Middlesex and Herts Notes and Queries," vol. iii., p. 11). But in the Subsidy Rolls for Harrow we find the following [see "Middlesex and Herts Notes and Queries," vol. iii., p. 186, and iv., p. 187]:—

1642. Subsidy Roll.
In Roxeth—Thomas Greenhill, in lands xx^s^.
William Greenhill, in lands xx^s^.
John Greenhill, in lands xx^s^.
In Greenhill—William Greenhill, gent., in lands iij^li^.

1675. Hearth Tax.
In Roxeth—William Greenhill pays for 7 chimnies.
John Greenhill, for 5 chimnies.
In Greenhill—M^r^ Greenhill, for 6 chimnies.

The last shews that Mr. Greenhill held his house in Greenhill; had it been let the tenant's name would have appeared. I think it likely that the anonymous writer has given the date of the death of another William Greenhill and not the father of Thomas, who was of Greenhill and of Hyde in Abbots Langley.

I have given a picture of the Arms as in the margin, because there is much confusion as to the term "Leopard." In James Coat's "New Dictionary of Heraldry, 1739," is this explanation: French Heralds laid it down that Lions passant-guardant were to be called "Leopards," but English Heralds declined to follow so absurd a distinction. It is thus that we sometimes meet with "the Leopards of England"! Even Papworth, at p. 19, blazons the Greenhill Arms granted 1698 as "Vert 2 bars erm., in chief a lion pass. guard. or," and so it seemed desirable to give the original picture shewing the ordinary "Felis Leopardus."

I, too, found it impossible to get distinctly the important thirty-nine mullets on the Crest! and so have left it, like the original office copy, merely an uncoloured sketch. It will be noticed that the gryphon is disposed with wings addorsed, so as to leave the greatest possible space for these mullets, but the artist abandoned the attempt to shew them there!

Here lyes S^r^ CHRISTOPHER WRAY of Ashby in | Lincolnesheire who dyed the 6^th^ of February 1645 | in y^e^ 44^th^ Yeare of his age, and in his last will and Tes- | tament desired this inscription following. | Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners | of whome I am cheife.—The 1 Tim. i. 15.

"There is a table hard by the former containeing onely the arms of WRAY," viz., Azure, on a chief or three martlets gules.

"On a gravestone part covered by y^e^ railes of y^e^ communion Table" (A shield divided quarterly of four; in the third quarter a chevron only is tricked):—

"Here lyeth interred the body of an accomplished Gentle- | man by name RICHARD HOLFORD, Esq., he was extracted | out of that most ancient family of the HOLFORDS in | the county of Chester . . . . | deserves an honorable esteeme & perpetual memory of | his meritts to all posterity. He dyed the 23 Aprill in the | Yeare of our Lord 1663, Aged . ."

This monument is not given in the "New View." In "The Visitation of Cheshire, 1580" (Harl. Soc.), the arms are given as 1, Argent, a greyhound passant sable, HOLFORD; 2, Argent, three bulls' heads caboshed sable, BULKELEY; 3, Argent, a chevron between three text T's sable, TOFT; 4, as 1. Crest: A greyhound's head couped sable. This agrees with the chevron in the third quarter of the tricked coat. The accompanying abstract of his will is valuable, as although the inscription says he was of the Cheshire family, his will shews he did not come directly from there, but from Cambridgeshire.

[Here the account of the Monuments in this Church ends, as far as Lansdowne MS. 878 gives them. Several of these it will be seen are not given in the "New View." On the other hand, the latter work gives some which were put up after the manuscript account was made; and having done so much, it may perhaps be not unacceptable if we complete our account of the Monuments in the Church of St. Giles-in-the-Fields by adding those in the "New View" not in the above MS. or among those still existing.]

[The inscriptions following are from the "New View of London," printed in 1708.]

The "New View of London," p. 259, says "a little way from the last (Widdrington's), on the south side of the chancel, is a neat blue-veined marble monument with this inscription :—

Underneath lyeth the Body of THOMAS CORNWALLIS, Esq., son of Sir FRANCIS CORNWALLIS | and ELIZABETH his wife, sole Daughter and Heir to Sir HENRY JONES, Baronet | of Abermarless in the county of Caermarthen. He married EMMA Daughter | of Sir JOHN CHARLETON, Knight and Baronet, by whom he had 4 Sons and 5 | Daughters; three sons died before him and one son and five Daughters survived. | His person was graceful, and his Soul sublime; Virtue Honour, | and Complacency guided all his Actions; a Lover of his Country; most | tender and indulgent to his Wife and Children; obliging and serviceable | to his Friends; hospitable and generous to his Neighbours, just, charitable | and courteous to all he conversed with. He lived beloved and | died much lamented by them all the 16th of July A.D. 1703. His | Noon was Night, being made perfect in 33 years. His Grandfather | CHARLES, his Father Sir FRANCIS, and his Brother CHARLES lye buried in this church, near the Pulpit. | His disconsolate Widow caused this Monument to be erected in | memory of her dear Husband, and his Relations.

His Armes here are 8 Coats quarterly: I. Sable, gutté de l'eau, on a Fess Argent 3 black birds. II. Sable, 3 Bars gemells Argent, on a canton or a crescent

Gules. III. Or, a Lion Rampant Gules. IV. Gules, 10 Bezants, 4, 3, 2, and 1. V. Sable, a cross flory or. VI. Argent, a chevron sable betn. 3 black birds within a Bordure engrayled Gules, charged with Entoir 11 Bazants. VII. Azure, on a mount proper a lion passant guardant or. VIII. As the third; and the crest a Buck lodged (or Cumbant) Argent attired or."

[The peculiarities of the blazon are those in the "New View," and it will be observed that the arms of Charleton and Jones are both given as quarterings, but it may be that the arms were incorrectly marshalled on the monument.

A manuscript note in the British Museum copy of the "New View" says that when the church was destroyed his body was taken up and removed into the vault of Bishop Robinson in the east end of the churchyard at Fulham, and buried with his sister Lætitia, as a stone there states.]

"On the N. side of the chancel near the E. end, a pretty white marble monument with this Inscription:—

"On one of the S. pillars fronting N.W. is a very curious tho' small monument, in memory of FRANCIS BACON and his children by ELIZABETH his wife. Under which are these words, in gold characters: 'For of such is the Kingdom of God'—S[t] Mark, chap. 10; and these arms: Gu., on a chief arg. two mullets sa., 'quartered with' Sa., three laurel-leaves or betw. two bendlets arg., a crescent for diff." [The book gives this coat as Sable, on a bend cotised, so that it is quite likely the two coats were impaled.]

On the same pillar was a "neat small white marble monument":—To the pious memory of JOHN and ALICE PEARSON and their son | JOHN, late of this parish. She died the 13[th] of April 1682 and the son | March the 30[th], 1695.

Arms: Per fess embattled azure and gules, three suns or.

"Near the S.E. corner of the church is a neat, small, white marble monument, with this Inscription:—

" At the W. end of the church a small stone monument with this inscription :—

" On a small monument on one of the S. pillars of the church this Inscription, fronting North :—

Here under resteth the Body of JANE late wife of | WILLIAM WHETSTONE of this parish who departed | this life the 11th of April 1653 being 23 years of age.

Earth hath possess'd her Ashes, Clay, and Dust,
And Heaven contains her soul among the just.
Favour is deceitful and Beauty is Vain ; but a Woman
That feareth the Lord she shall be praised."

" On one of the N. pillars towards the W. end and fronting S.E. a very small but neat white marble monument, inscribed :—

Arms : Three arrows, points in base" [Gules, three arrows, points in base or, headed and feathered argent].

" On a pretty small white marble monument on a south pillar, almost fronting the Pulpit, this Inscription :—

Near to this marble JUDITH BAYLEY lies,
Who was both modest, sober, chast, and wise.
Religion was her study, Zeal her care,
A fervant Lover of the House of Prayer ;
Her Parents had her Duty and her Love,
Who now are pleas'd in hope she's blest above.

Virtue was still her Guide, her End, and Aim,
Her Zeal was constant to her as her name;
Near 18 years of Age, who can forbear
To read her character without a Tear?
She departed this life the 18th of October 1683.
Her brother JOHN 14 days after dy'd,
Aged 7 years, lyes by his Sister's side.

She was the eldest Daughter, and he the only Son of | JOHN and JUDITH BAYLEY, of this Parish.

SARAH another Daughter sleeps in mould.
She left this Life when almost 6 years old:
She that was filled with Duty, Wit and Love
Is surely happy with the Saints above.
November 24 in Eighty five
She dy'd to us to be with Christ alive.

The said Mr JOHN BAYLEY their Father died January the 7th, 1696, in the 63d year of his age. The monument is adorned with Urns, Leaves, Fruit, etc.

"On a plated Grave stone in the middle Ile, near the Pulpit, this Inscription, tho' somewhat worn out:—

Interr'd the corps of BARON BYRCH lyes here
Of Gray's Inn sometime, by degree Esquire:
In Chequer 18 years a Judge he was
Till Soul from aged Body his did pass.
Alive his wife ELIZA doth remain,
Of Stydfolk stock one Son and Daughters twain
She bare by him; the eldest in his Life
He gave to THOMAS BOWYER for his Wife.
His body sleeps till Angel trump shall sound.
God grant we all may ready then be found.

JOHANNES BYRCH, Obiit Anno D. 1581, Maii 30, Ætat suæ 66."

Arms, on a brass plate: A chevron wavy between three eagles displayed.

"In the Cemetery or churchyard, close to the wall on the South side and near the West end, on a Tombstone:—

JOHANNES THORNTON in memoria Charissimæ Uxoris | MARGARITÆ Filiæ GEORGIÆ COLLINS hujus Parochiæ Sancti | Ægidii in Campis hoc monumentum posuit.

Under this sad marble sleeps
She for whom even Marble weeps;
Her Praise lives still, tho' here she lyes
Seeming dead that never dies.
Religion, Love in suffering Breast,
Her Charity, Mildness, and the rest,
Have crown'd her soul; all mourn with Fame
Her Husband's loss and Midwife's blame.
She dy'd in Child-bed, 70 times blest and seven,
Her child and she deliver'd both in Heaven.
Ob. 8 Jan. 1611.

Round the Margent of the stone these words:

Full South this stone four Foot doth lye
His Father JOHN and Grandsire HENRY
THORNTON of Thornton in Yorkshire bred,
Where lives the fame of THORNTONS being dead."

[The transcript of this is mistaken in Mr. Stow's "Survey."]

"On a marble stone, somewhat raised, on the S. side of the church in the yard :—

Here lyes the Body of ROBERT HOPE of this parish, Gent. who | departed this Life the 22nd Septemb. 1651, being aged 71 years. | To whose Memory his loving wife JANE HOPE caused this | Monument to be erected.

Reader, it grieves me that I cannot bring
A sea of Tears to drown my sorrows in,
For the lamented Death of my dear Father,
Whose Soul God to himself did lately gather.
His Life was ever holy, and last Breath
Was full of Goodness, pious at his Death ;
Which confidently makes me hope and trust
His Fame takes Wing from his so hopeful Dust.
Oh ! Grief stops my Eye-streams ; pray, Reader, then Lend me some Tears till I can weep agen.
Memoria Pii Æterna.

Here also lyes the Body of Mrs JANE HOPE, Wife of the above | named ROBERT HOPE, who departed this life the 18th of | December 1675, in the 77th year of her age."

Arms: A chevron between three roundels.

"On a stone on the S. side of the church :—

Here lyes the best of Men, whose Life is at an end,
The best of Husbands and the truest Friend ;
Who rests I hope as I do hope to be Happy with him in all Eternity.
JOHN HENSHAM, who died 17 Dec. 1695."

"Close by the Hope stone is a marble inscribed :—

Anicitiæ Pignus | Felici memoriæ MARIÆ HOPE, obiit | Anno Salut 1670. Ætatis suæ 27.

All the rare Qualities the Poets fam'd
On those they most ador'd, she justly claim'd
Wit, Vertue, Wisdom, all in Hope are gone,
To meet a glorious Resurrection.
Mourn wisely then, Hope does not truly die,
But change Her Being for Eternity."

"On a Tombstone close to the south side near the East end of the church :—

Here lyes expecting the coming of our Lord and Saviour, | the Body of JOHN HEARNDON, PRUDENCE his Wife and | WILLIAM their Son, all of this Parish. JAMES died Aug. 1653 | PRUDENCE Oct. 1656, and WILLIAM Octob. 1662.

Reader, let thy Reason know
We were once as thou art now.
Whilst we lived we wrought in Stone,
And now attend the Corner one ;
And in health did this prepare
For us our Wives and children here.
Death's only by the Wicked fear'd,
The Righteous 'gainst his sting's prepar'd.
Then, Reader, let thy Care in Life be such Earth may thy Body, not thy Spirit touch."

"On a grey marble Tombstone, sd. from the Chancel in the churchyard :—

Here lies the Bodies of JOHN, ANN, and OBEDIAH, | children of JOHN and ANN EASTON of this Parish.

The ravenous Eagle Death, greedy of Prey,
Whose piercing Eye found where these infants lay,
He crush'd them with his Tallons, and convey'd
Their Souls to Heaven, and here's their Ashes laid
Where now they rest in Providences Store
Till Time and Death and Tears shall be no more.

Also ANN the Wife of the said JOHN EASTON, died August | 1679.

"Earth hath possess'd their ashes, Clay, and Dust,
And Heaven contains their Souls among the Just."

"At the E. of the S. Ile, in the wall without the church, this Inscription:—

Here under resteth the Body of JOHN the son of ROBERT | and CONSTANCE WIGHT, who died the 10th of July, Anno Dom. | 1678, aged 4 Years and 10 months.

"My Time is short, the longer is my Rest.
God called me hence because he thought it best."

"In the wall close by the last:—

M. S.

Near this place lyeth buried the Body of FRANCIS HARROWELL, | who died the 12th of April 1652 aged 73 Years, and bequeathed | to the poor of this Parish £5 a year for 20 years and upward, | beginning in the year 1652."

MARY PERKINS 1703. [Query if part of the above.]

"On a Tombstone close to the N.E. corner of the N. Ile and in the churchyard:—

In Memoriam.

The Rev. FRANCIS JOHN POYNTON, M.A., died at the Rectory, Kelston, Somerset, on the 22nd of November, aged 76. He was born at Chew Magna, Somerset, 16th June 1827, and was educated at Shrewsbury School and Exeter College, Oxford. Elected to the Symes Scholarship in 1849 he was ordained Priest in 1851, and having served as Curate of Ducklington (Oxon), Slapton (Bucks), and Burmington (Warwick), he was presented to the living of Kelston in 1858. In 1874 he contributed to this Magazine "Genealogical Memoranda relating to the Family of Blackburne," and a few years later he wrote and privately printed a History of Kelston, a work of great research, and containing many details of the Families of Harrington, Huddleston, Hawkins, etc. He was a friend of the late Col. J. Lemuel Chester, and was elected a member of the Harleian Society in 1875. Mr. Poynton had a very extensive knowledge of the antiquarian and family history of his neighbourhood, and contributed papers to the Bristol and Gloucestershire Archæological Society, the Somersetshire Archæological Society, and to the "Genealogist." He became a member of the Record Society of Somerset; and having been for many of the early years of his life a member of the Palæontological Society, he formed an extensive collection of fossils, but outside the field of genealogy his most valuable collection was one of Roman coins.

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

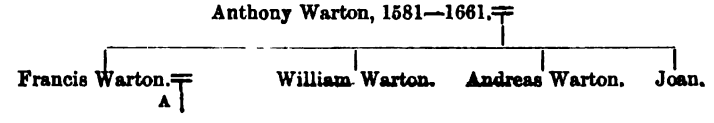
HERCY OF NETTLEBED, OXON.

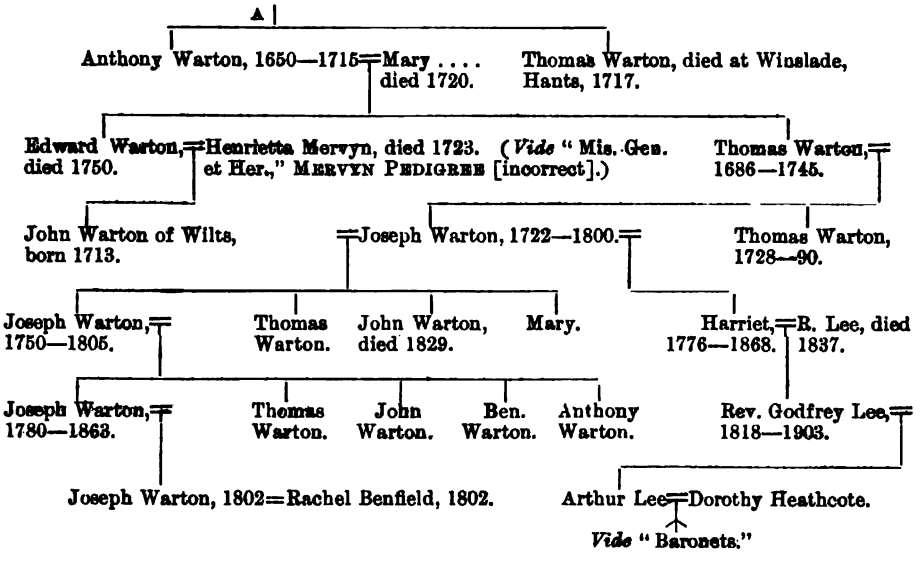
TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

SIR,

I have found a very curious point about this family, viz., they lived in Sonning, Berks, 1602—59. The Visitations of Berks and Oxon ignore nearly all dates. I find them at Nettlebed 1586—1666, i.e., later than the pedigree in the 1634 Visitation of Oxon. I send you particulars, to save them from being lost. Some time ago you printed several items from Shottesbrook Registers—Hercy, Weldon, Calverley.

I have also found a very bad mistake in the descent of Rev. Thomas Warton of Oxford, 1728—90. His ancestor, Rev. Anthony Warton, came from Walton, Lancs, 1596, to Lincoln College, Oxford. He was born at Walton 1581, and died at Breamore, Hants, 1661. Will in the P.C.C.





It is supposed that Warton of Warton Hall, Lancs, was related to Cardinal Allen, who founded Douay College. I should think that these Wartons were also of the same county and dates.

William Warton of Warton Hall, Lancs, 1586.

Thomas Warton.

Thomas Wharton of Walton on the Hill, Lancs.

Anthony Wharton, born 1623; died 1623.

Probably nephew of the other Anthony. Unfortunately the registers are gone in 1581.

Reviews.

The Ancestry of Randall Thomas Davidson, D.D., Archbishop of Canterbury. By Rev. ADAM PHILIP, M.A., Longforgan. London: Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row, E.C.

THE Author of this tastefully got-up book begins his history of our Primate by narrating how a worthy old lady nearly 80 years old in 1750 had bitterly complained of a Mr. David Randall, a merchant, who had been entrusted with a valuable MS. given to her by John Livingstone of Ancrum, explicatory of the Bible, on the promise that he would get it printed in Holland. This was about 1728, and more than twenty years after she was still bewailing its loss. This Mr. Randall had a son Thomas, who was taken to Edinburgh, where he graduated as an M.A. in 1730, and was ordained at Inchture in Perthshire when he was about forty years old. Here he brought home his bride, Mary Davidson, daughter of a minister of Dundee. Like a prudent Scot he did not incur the happiness of marriage before he was fairly situated; a fine marble tablet in the wall of the Church records that he died on 18th November 1760, aged 62. He was charitably inclined, as he left £300 for the benefit of the poor. His wife, who was widow of Mr. Thomas Elliot when he married her (another trait of his Scotch tact), had a son John Elliot, who became an apothecary, and went out as a surgeon on board a privateer, and having acquired a large amount of prize-money, he settled and graduated at St. Andrew's University in 1750 as a physician, and three years after became a Licentiate of the College of Physicians and was soon celebrated in London, and was knighted in 1776, and finally became a baronet, having been Physician to the Prince of Wales; it is said his fees were £5000 a year. Sir John Elliot married a Miss Grace Dalrymple, but got a divorce from her and £12,000 damages, and finally died at the seat of his friend Lord Melbourne; his uncle, the merchant of Rotterdam, put up a tablet to his memory in the Church of Dundee.

Our minister at Inchture proved to be a man of great force, publishing several papers on the laxity in the observance of the Lord's Supper. He was besides a busy man in his parish, which had a population in 1755 of 893, and on Saturday nights he would go round the village to see that the people were housed and at rest, and he was not slow to rebuke those trespassing on the early Sabbath. It was surmised that he had met John Wesley, who had been more than once in the neighbourhood, but he had his misgivings of his zeal. He wrote several tracts, some of which were against patronage, which he considered was injurious. After a very active life he died in 1780, in his seventieth year and forty-second of his ministry. Thus passed away the ancestor of the present Archbishop of Canterbury.

Mr. Thomas Randall left a son Thomas, who was born in 1747. There is a remarkable story told at Inchture, how that a parishioner had dreamt that her boy had fallen into the well used by the Manse and the village, and early in the morning she went direct to it, and found not her boy, but the minister's boy in it. Thus the child saved became the distinguished Dr. Thomas Randall Davidson.

This son's early life was at Inchture, but having an uncle in Holland, who like his grandfather had been there and prospered, after he had taken his college course in Glasgow young Randall was sent to Holland, and studied at Utrecht and Leyden, where he attended the Scotch Church, and found as a companion his tutor, Dr. William Thomson, a man of exceptional knowledge, and who left a long list of writings behind him.

He became a preacher at Rotterdam in 1769, and preached his first sermon in Amsterdam; he then returned to Scotland, and was appointed his father's successor at Inchture, when he was removed to Stirling. His stay here was not long, for he went to Glasgow, where he made his mark, and then went to Edinburgh, where he laboured from 1785 till his death in 1827, receiving the degree of D.D. from Harvard University in 1793, and adopting the surname of Davidson from his uncle at Rotterdam, he inheriting his uncle's property at Muirhouse, Midlothian, as Dr. Thomas Randall Davidson, the present Primate his grandson being Dr. Randall Thomas Davidson. The encomium passed upon him by Dr. Mason of New York, the Chalmers of America, was "Rev. Dr. Davidson—Gentle, placid, pure, spiritual; talents moderate; zeal and diligence great; affectionate, tender, beloved by the good," etc.

It suffices now for us to come to Dr. Davidson's sons. William, the eldest, succeeded to the estate at Muirhouse, and then it was associated with the fortunes of his fourth son Henry, who was a partner in a firm of timber merchants. There was another son, who was distinguished as an engineer. Mr. Henry Davidson married the daughter of a well-known Border laird, Mr. Swinton of Kimmerghame, and had three sons and a daughter—Randall Thomas, John Henry, Ernest Archibald, and Mary Catherine, and the eldest is the Primate, "for whom no better prayer can arise than that a double portion of the spirit of his forefathers may be upon him," as our Author concludes his history with.

His Grace married Edith, the second daughter of Archbishop Tait, in 1878, and was Private Secretary to his father-in-law, whose name is reverenced by many in London. He was also the Secretary to Archbishop Benson in 1882-3. He became Bishop of Rochester in 1891—95 and Bishop of Winchester in 1895—1903, his predecessor at each place being also well known in London as Dr. Thorold, formerly of St. Giles's and St. Pancras.

In these days of confederation, when thousands of miles do not prevent our colonists "across the seas" from according to us their lives and friendship, and where our good old friend Dr. Nicolson lived very many years in Tasmania, his Church being the first built there, ministering as a Scotch clergyman since 1851 to a diocese equal in size to many a minor European State, and passing away to his heavenly rest in his 94th year, what would not the British nationalities gain by an amalgamation brought about by the Primate between the English and the Scotch Churches. Their services are nearly alike, in many cases they sing the same hymns, and both are above pandering to notoriety. We mooted the same to an eminent Scotch clergyman who preaches in London, pointing out the advantages of one Church, but he gave no reply beyond his invite to come to his Church and hear him.

The Work is illustrated by twelve excellent engravings, and its price of 3*s.* 6*d.* is too low for its worth.

A Way of his Own: An Autobiography. By A. KNOTCUTTER. London: Henry J. Deane, Salisbury Square, Fleet Street. 1903.

THIS is a well printed book of 256 pp., dedicated "to all the Mudies and the Smiths of the present time," but we doubt if they will move an inch out of their chosen way to enhance the circulation of the book. We are introduced to the boy who had "a way of his own" in his conversation with an old soldier, and the book recalls Hughes's "Tom Brown's School-days," except that the hero is under the control of the Lord Chancellor, and was possessed of fair wealth, was reckoned the best bowler and the "cock of the school" in the summer for the coming season; besides which he almost won a scholarship in Divinity, but the question about the "march of the Jews in the wilderness" floored him. He put an extreme case to the Lord Chancellor by asking what could he do if a revolution broke out and his estates were seized; how could he earn his livelihood?

Little episodes are given shewing how his sympathy would be given to animals. At a battue given by a sporting friend our hero was reckoned the best shot, and was accordingly invited, and had the head gamekeeper to attend to him. To the latter's disgust, when a trembling hare at fifteen paces off looked up plaintively and caught his eye, he took no notice of it, although several gamekeepers were waiting to see what a shot he was, as he had struck the running deer ninety-nine times out of a hundred at a private gallery. The fearful eye of the hare was a shock to him, and he spared it, much to the beater's disgust, and so his character as a good shot was ascribed to "Mad Leverett," as he was called.

This shews us how the hero's sympathies were with animals. He found life too monotonous on his estates with three houses, so he sailed for Australia at a friend's invite. Here he helped him by taking up a banker's advance, and so saved his friend, and eventually the estates he himself acquired while there proved to be a gold mine to him.

Our Author gives an account of a racing establishment, and among the horses he had reared when he returned to England, and had entered for the great Olympia race, was Mayflower. Greatly to the Squire's horror, his jockey came to him quite ill, saying he had been "got at" and could not ride the mare, and, driven to a great extremity, he sought advice of the head of the racing Committee, General Grouse, who acquiesced in his riding the mare himself, but being a man six feet high and clearing eleven stone, the bystanders gave a faint cheer, whilst the racing ring exclaimed "just like Leverett," when they saw him jump into the saddle, having on "white knee-breeches and silk stockings, but neither boots nor whip nor spurs." The upshot was, Mayflower shot ahead at once, after a cheering whisper from her master riding her, and despite all efforts of the riders against him she came in two lengths ahead of a colt not in the betting, but whose owner would not support an objection, as he said Leverett had been "a friend to the Turf that day." Where the Author got his account from of his hero's dress without his boots or whip was certainly not reported by any racing journal!

Our Author next pushes him forward for Parliament, and he got in. Having by an accident been enabled to help Lord Regibus when he had a fit in the Park, he got acquainted with his sister, who by her charming manner impressed our hero so much that he gave her Mayflower, and she finally gave him her hand. A merry wedding party of Lord Regibus and his bride and Squire Leverett, of Hare Park and Leverett Paddocks and the Overtun Run in Australia, with Lady Victoria his bride, the daughter of the Duke of Ataris, all started together for Spain on their honeymoon.

Having thus written a pleasing account of an eligible young man, who, because "he had a way of his own" was set upon by Society, our Author has to be congratulated upon the strict observance of not pandering to sensation or suicides or broken vows, and has always kept his readers in good society, from the Lord Chancellor, who was the hero's guardian, down to the old soldier who first spoke to him as to all being working men, anxious to do something, from the Prime Minister to the policeman. He has produced a book which would be as great an attraction to boys as "Sandford and Merton," and ought to be in the hands of schoolmasters and others as a fit prize for a steady boy. Its price is only 3*s.* 6*d.*

The History of Friar Lane Baptist Church, Nottingham, being a contribution towards the History of the Baptists in Nottingham. By JOHN T. GODFREY and JAMES WARD. Nottingham: Henry A. Saxton, King Street. 1903.

THIS is a handsome royal 8vo volume, the first of its kind for publishing the Registers of a leading Nonconformist Church. Besides giving a full history of the Friar Lane Baptist Church, it gives fourteen pedigrees of the most notable families, well drawn up and printed, some dated from the early part of 1700, one later of William Vickers being born in 1797 and his wife in 1799, and she living till January 1891. The Church was built in 1724, and was sold for £100 as the third place of worship of the Baptists in Nottingham, the earlier records of the body being lost. Like many other congregations they soon split up, seven members going from Park Street and establishing another Church, the George Street Baptist, Mr. Thomas Morley being the first Pastor in 1742.

The "Declaration of Faith," dated 2 November 1769, began: "We, a small handful of the unworthy dust of Zion, assembled together for the worship of God in Friar Lane," etc.; and "in obedience to the command of God, we being now met together, again to make a fresh surrendour of ourselves to the Lord." The Rev. Richard Copper was the Pastor in 1769, and he had come from Kingston-upon-Hull, and in the book of the Declaration he had a list of all the regular members from 1770 to 1802, containing seventy-eight entries, but another list was there containing "those who had been excluded and for what," and numbering eighty-seven names from 1770 to 1818, so that sixteen years later there were nine more members excluded than what formed the first congregation. Why the "unworthy dust of Zion" should be thus "excluded" is not given, but it certainly was not the behaviour of Christians who "love one another" to rebel so soon and in such numbers. In this early period the sum devoted to the Pastor in quarterly collections amounted to £44 8*s.* 9*d.* for ten months, about £1 2*s.* 2*d.* a week, so that possibly those who did not subscribe were those "excluded." However, those who followed were not better, for "Mr. Hopper's income from the Church averaged about £1 0*s.* 0*d.* per week" only. In 1784 half-a-crown was paid for "Engraving Cup," but after this extravagance some one stole it, and no trace of it could be found.

In this small way the Church began, each year adding but little, until in 1810 £1144 were raised for the erection of a Chapel, the sums "varying from seven shillings down to two pence monthly." Wherever "Providence opened a door" a Brother would go and preach, but in 1812-13 several members were excluded for impropriety, and two women for telling falsehoods, and in 1815 a Mr. Hood was excluded for being an "irreclaimable Antinamian," who contended that "faith alone would insure salvation."

The earliest known burial-ground was formed in 1724, and was a place of worship originally. The earliest head-stone is to the memory of John Walkley, who died in 1757, and the last interment was that of Miss Elizabeth Aldknow, who died in November 1876, aged 64 years. A list of eighty inscriptions is given.

The Register of Births and Burials is given from 1742 to 1837, and was "taken from the original volume in the custody of the Registrar General, Somerset House," and the names occupy 40 pp., and that is followed by Biographical Notes in alphabetical order, including that of their first minister, the Rev. Richard Hopper, who began his ministry with fifteen members meeting in a cottage before he went to Nottingham. There are twenty-four biographies and nineteen portraits, the Rev. Samuel Ward dying in January 1840. A list of members from 1769 to 1815, including women, is next given, occupying 11 pp., and contains the names of fifty-eight persons "dismissed," several to London and neighbouring places, the last name given being William Vickers, who was of humble origin, getting his education from the Church's Sunday School. He was apprenticed in 1810 to a lace manufacturer, and afterwards in 1818 he is described as in the lace trade, and had entered into partnership with a Mr. Frearson; they prospered, and had several agencies in South America, etc. In 1815 Mr. Vickers joined the Baptist Church, and was in his prime in the days of Chartists and the Anti-Corn League. He afterwards became Alderman, and finally Mayor, when Her late Majesty visited Nottingham with the Prince Consort in 1843. To the Nottingham High School he devoted a great amount of time. He died in May 1882 and his wife in January 1891, and the book gives both their portraits. He seems to have been the most successful man among the Baptists in Nottingham, and had seven children, some of his great-grandchildren being born up to 1892 according to the pedigree. All the pedigrees are drawn out in a very excellent manner, and each folded within the book. The volume is a great credit to both the Authors, and ought to be supported by Baptists generally as an earnest monument to the history of their body. It is excellently printed by the Chorotон Press, and altogether worthy of patronage.

How to Decipher and Study Old Manuscripts: Being a guide to the reading of Ancient Manuscripts. Second Edition. By E. E. THOYTS, with an introduction by C. PRICE MARTIN. London: Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row. 1903.

WE are very glad to welcome a second edition of Miss Thoyts' excellent guide to the decipherment of ancient documents, because the inference is that the work has paid its expenses at least. Mr. Martin has written an introduction, and some amusing blunders he gives, though to an unpractised reader of old documents the mistakes might not have been understood.

In the Authoress's "hints to beginners" there are some excellent remarks about writing. This as a rule has deteriorated very much during the last thirty years. The pretty Italian handwriting taught in schools then to young ladies has drifted down to a coarseness which can be done equally well with a pointed piece of wood instead of with a delicate pen, and the young ladies of the day have degenerated in their writing to a large and awkward hand which a butcher boy would excel in. In a similar way our boys in going into examinations at Sandhurst and elsewhere are more often plucked for bad spelling, because the Universities, and after them other public and private schools, have thought spelling to be beneath their notice. The beautiful examples of writing we have among our Grants of Arms and similar documents are a proof of what writing was during 1400 and 1500. The deed of the Wax Chandlers' Company has a beautiful inscription at the foot which is a fair sample, and the Italians or Monks who did that no doubt wrote the inscription on other companies' grants. In the same way the Italian ornamentations adopted in many churches and colleges and private houses in Elizabethan days were done by the same Italian workmen, travelling from Westminster to Oxford and Wales and other parts.

The Authoress considers that the decline or alteration in writing, dated from the introduction of the art of printing, is superseding the labour of the large class of men who had formerly earned their living as professional writers. But against these we must place the labour of love which the monks adopted in their beautiful designed initial letters running down a page in gold and blue, along with the text, examples of which are so rich in those shewn at the British Museum.

It is rare we come across erasures or mistakes in the lettering of old charters, but any one versed in copying out wills, etc., will find the testator's name spelt differently throughout, as we have seen a will where the testator's name was spelt in seventeen different ways, and last of all he signed the will with a different spelling than what he began the deed with.

A good knowledge of Latin is indispensable to a transcriber, whether the deed be in Latin or Norman-French, to which modern French is a great assistant; but it is only by experience that he can decipher or interpret the multitudinous contractions and signs so generally adopted in the older documents.

Even in our own days Sir Walter Scott and Charles Dickens' hands were charming, whereas Lord Brougham and other leading men had such execrable writing to decipher that it was stated that only one compositor could translate his lordship's meaning in the printing office where his work was done.

The work is embellished with examples of writing, some of Fines and Court Rolls, such as the Sheriffs' Roll among the Neville MSS., and two photographic copies of the Reading Abbey Chartulary, besides giving some examples of quaint signs from old Parish Registers. The Author spares no pains in shewing the student what abbreviations he may come across, and her motto, as she finishes her agreeable task, is "Persevere and Practise." The work is published at 4s. 6d., and we would recommend every student of antiquarian taste to secure a copy.

Ball Records. No. 1. Index to Wills of Ball, Balle, or Balls in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, Somerset House, 1445—1802. Bishops Stortford: A Boardman and Son. 1903.

WE must congratulate Mr. H. Houston Ball upon getting together a mass of information concerning the families of the redoubtable Balls from 1445 to 1802. Why such a name should be immortalized by the assiduity of a Ball living in 1903 is alone known to the compiler, who is, however, a member of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland, and that may account for his eccentricity, for he threatens his readers that if his efforts are supported he will deal with the calendars of the Bishop of London's Courts, and that may be a preliminary to the publications of the wills themselves. Such a catastrophe we trust we may be spared to see, much more to read; and as among the gentlemen who take matters easy finding life is not long enough for chess, what is to be said of the future generation of readers who likewise take life easy, but will have to encounter the volumes of wills of the Balls families? Out of 536 persons given in the book there are a few clergymen, gentlemen, and mariners, and the rest belong to the ordinary public, including 100 women, the best placed of them apparently being the third wife of Dean Alexander Nowell of St. Paul's, who was married twice before to Thomas Ball and Laurence Ball. There are about eighty Balls given in Kelly's "Commercial Directory," but we only find one Ball even among the knights.

The pamphlet is undoubtedly a labour of love, and is a monument of painstaking industry. The Author does not affix any price to the book, which makes 22 pp. demy 8vo.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XI., No. 2. October 1903. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THE present Part gives an excellent account of the passing of the Moravians through Virginia in 1749, from a diary kept by Leonhard Schnell and John Brandmueller, who went from the settlements founded by Germans, preaching as they journeyed, and sometimes travelling for thirty-five miles without seeing a house, and climbing high mountains, living only on Johnny cakes. They were always allowed to share in whatever was ready; one, a miller, however, had not a bit of bread in the house. The two travellers were received everywhere very cheerfully, and their host generally got together a company of neighbours to hear them preach and baptize the children.

The proceedings of the Virginia Committee of Correspondence, 1750—67, were concerned in acts for relief of debtors, the liberty to import salt rather than ballast, and also to exchange coin. In Virginia "Gleanings in England" are published the wills of many merchants and others, several requesting to be buried in the old country, and many leaving all they had to relations there. In some Virginia Records are petitions of various kinds: one for taking off a fine of 500 lbs. of tobacco against the petitioner for burning "one Anthony Parre," as he had already paid 4000 lbs. on account of the action.

In genealogy the Bruce family is amply given, likewise that of the Brookes and Herndon families, besides several others; and the Part ends with historical notes and queries of various kinds, some of which are very quaint.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XIII., Parts 9, 10, and 11, September, October, and November. London : A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE Part for September has a plate as a frontispiece dated at top 1603 and 1793, and is inscribed "Ex Bibliotheca Abbatiæ Sti. Gregorii Magni de Downside," beautifully engraved. There are two examples of bookplates designed by Mr. Graham Johnson of the Lyon Office, Edinburgh, one of the arms of David MacRitchie of Logie, Perth, and the other of Sir John Ure Primrose, Lord Provost of Glasgow, recently granted by Lyon Court, well drawn on similar lines. There is another bookplate of a very different character to these designed by Mr. C. E. Eldred, who is a Naval Officer but a delicate draughtsman, as the plate of "Mary E. Harvey" shews. The Franks' collection of bookplates is ably referred to by Mr. Alfred A. Bethune Baker, F.S.A., who refers to the first volume of the catalogue of the British and American bookplates bequeathed to the British Museum by Sir Wollaston Franks being published ; and as he says that before the end of the year the rest of the catalogue will be printed, comprising nearly 4000 bookplates, it is very gratifying to know that the Museum has so soon completed a catalogue of the collection nobly bequeathed to the institution which was graced for so many years by the presence and assiduous study of the kind donor. The Museum is thus the first public institution possessing a representative collection of bookplates, thus adding a great interest to the members of the Ex Libris Society. Such a collection as that of the late Dr. Howard's would have made another good addition had it not been so carelessly sent for sale, and many valuable plates distributed amongst buyers without any regard to the value of them. The Part ends with a further list of legal bookplates and also of a list of Chippendale plates.

The October Part has a Hebrew bookplate of Elkah Nathan Adler as a frontispiece with a Hebrew inscription at the top of it ; it merely displays the outstretched eagle with an inscription running round the coat. There is a good account of Jewish bookplates written by Israel Solomons. Some single legal bookplates are also given, besides one of Mr. Henry Lawrance, originally designed by Miss F. R. Sarg and engraved by Will. Foster of Plymouth.

The November Part, which reaches us as we are going to press, has two plates for the Frontispiece, one of Daniel Parsons and the other Robert Lovell's, some notes upon which will be found. That of Mr. Parsons is described as "a paternal coat quartering a maternal one, and impaling conjugal arms," an excellent and concise description. The selection of Legal bookplates include those of the Lord Chief Baron and Lord Penzance. There is also an illustration of the plate of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn—truly American. Some notes on Designing and Designers, a criticism of a recent American work on that subject, leaves us satisfied that the bookplate of the future will not want for able men to ensure at least artistic merit, which after all, it must be admitted, should be the principal feature of a bookplate.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XXXIV., No. 4. October 1903. Society's Office : 226 West 58th Street, New York, U.S.A.

THIS Part begins with a sketch of Anthony Bleecker of New York, and his portrait forms the frontispiece plate. The history of Old White Church in Salem is mentioned in an address delivered by Dr. A. Fitch, and the account given of it concludes with the record that it was 116 years old, 100 of which was settled in the present place, and it can claim to be the oldest religious society in Washington County, and the Author finishes with the exhortation, "Long live the Old White Church in Salem ! and when the last of its members shall lie beneath the sod, may it be the lot of a future chronicler to record with truth that we were worthy of the precious heritage it was our privilege to enjoy." There are the Records of Marriages, Baptisms, and Deaths in Easthampton from 1696 to 1746, occupying several pages. A review of disbanded soldiers mustered at Bear River on 25 January 1784, and also a muster roll of officers, soldiers, and loyalists taken at Gulliver's Hole, etc., also in June 1784. There are full accounts given of the family of Edward Fuller, also of the Waring family of co. Salop, England, with arms, and the Freer family of New Paltz, New York. An interesting Paper is given of Southampton, England, with a couple of illustrations of the Bar Gate, including a good account of objects of interest there. The Part winds up with Editorial accounts of several families, among them that of Mr. Rufus King, a late member of the Harleian Society of England, and the Part gives ample indices of names and subjects in Vol. XXXIV., with title, etc.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. V., Part 59. October 1903. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part contains an interesting account of De Foe, the author of Robinson Crusoe, whose family it appears was at Etton in Northamptonshire, not Elton as generally supposed. Mr. Thomas Wright, who published De Foe's life in 1894, holds that Foe. Faux, Vaux, and Devereux are variations of the same name, and that his family came from Flanders. Daniel died in 1631, leaving a small estate.

There is an interesting account of the French register at Thorney. The Huguenot settlers who came over here were engaged in the reclamation of the land on the Bedford estate, and in twelve years 40,000 acres of land had been brought under cultivation. Cromwell in 1630 issued an ordinance granting to foreigners full rights of English citizenship, thus inducing many Protestant refugees from Flanders to betake themselves here. It was a hard life, hard even for them, for those who invested their money lost it, and in many cases it was forfeited for arrears of rates and taxes.

The Part contains an account of two extensive fires occurring, one at Woodwalton Fen, where ten acres of bracken and turf were one blaze, and it required the Huntingdon and Ramsey fire brigades to put it out. The other was at Wicken Fen, a resort of the wild fowl and scarce butterflies which frequented the neighbourhood. Twenty acres were destroyed of this last piece of fenland of Old England, and it was the home of considerable numbers of English plants and insects and some rare birds which are found in no other part of England. All were destroyed through the carelessness of four University men from Cambridge in throwing away unspent matches in the usual custom of smokers; they saw the sedge catch fire, and when alight "they lost their heads and ran away." They honestly owned it, so the proprietor forgave them.

There are other interesting Papers all worth reading, and the Part keeps up its useful purpose in publishing anything pertaining to Fenland, and its drainage from 1637, great opposition being shewn to it by the commoners, who commenced riots in several towns. Cromwell besides was opposed to the drainage, which had been going on for years, and he abetted the malcontents.
